AN UNPUBLISHED PACT SIGNED AT LAUSANNE

HOSPITAL DRAMA

FATHER SHOTS
DAUGHTER

MATRON'S BRAVE
INTERVENTION

(Reuter's Special Service).

London, July 13.
The grim story of a remarkable shooting incident in a London hospital yesterday is prominently featured in the newspapers this morning.

The father of a girl of twenty-one, who was a patient in the hospital, murdered the girl and then attempted suicide.

The shooting appears to have been premeditated. The man was visiting his daughter when he suddenly drew a revolver.

A matron, standing nearby, made a heroic attempt to avert the tragedy. She threw herself between the girl and her father and received the first bullet fired. Fortunately, it merely struck her wrist.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

She was then roughly thrown aside by the father, who must have been temporarily insane, and who opened fire upon the helpless girl, shooting her dead.

The revolver was then turned upon himself and he gravely wounded himself, doctors believing that he cannot recover.

HARBIN CUSTOMS SEIZURE

MR. PRETTEJOHN NOW
ORDERED OUT

Harbin, July 12.

The Manchukuo authorities continue to adopt a high-handed attitude on the Customs issue.

The latest development is the seizure by the authorities of all the safes and keys and contents of the Customs building here.

They have also ordered the Commissioner, Mr. Prettejohn, and his staff to evacuate the Customs living quarters.—Reuter.

JACK PETERSEN TRIUMPHS

MEEN KNOCKED OUT
IN TWO ROUNDS

London, July 12.

Jack Petersen, the new star in the British heavyweight boxing firmament, more than justified the expectations of his supporters to-night when, at the Wimbledon Stadium, he won the British championship, knocking out Reggie Meen, the holder.

The fight lasted under two rounds. Petersen attacked with marked judgment and quickly had Meen in difficulty. The Cardiff boy knocked the holder out in the second round with a terrific punch to the jaw.—Reuter.

SILVER RATHER EASIER

HONGKONG DOLLAR
UNCHANGED

The Hongkong dollar remains unchanged at 1s 3½d to-day, despite the fact that silver has declined both in London and New York. The local market is dormant, with a slightly easier undertone.

In London, silver declined 1/16th. There was no special feature, and the market was quietly steady. After the official fixing, the market was rather dull, with America inclined to sell. New York reports a decline of 1/8th in silver prices, on a dull market.

SO-CALLED GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT

PRIME MINISTER GIVES
AN EXPLANATION

NOT INTENDED AS AN ULTIMATUM TO WASHINGTON

London, July 12.

THE DRAMATIC REVELATION THAT ACTUAL DOCUMENTS WERE SIGNED AT LAUSANNE BETWEEN BRITAIN, FRANCE AND ITALY, EMBODYING THE SO-CALLED GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT, CONCERNING WHICH THERE HAS BEEN MUCH SPECULATION IN LONDON AND SOME SIGNS OF ALARM IN CERTAIN CIRCLES IN THE UNITED STATES, WAS MADE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TO-NIGHT.

The suggestion that this "secret agreement" is tantamount to an ultimatum to America was firmly and clearly dispelled by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, but there was a feeling in the House that the document should be published. Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Churchill both urged publication. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald said he did not object, but as the gist of the documents had already been published, there was no occasion to publish them. Mr. Neville Chamberlain declared that Britain could not publish them without the consent of France and Italy. Mr. Lansbury also thought it better to publish. Nothing should be permitted to stand which might lead to suggestions that the Governments had something to hide. Sir John Simon later announced that he had cabled to Paris and Rome for consent to publish.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald hinted that complete success of Lausanne might depend on the Disarmament Conference. Sir John Simon, dealing with this point, paralleled the Lausanne atmosphere of "Something Must Be Done" with Geneva's "Something Ought to Be Done," and expressed the hope that the former watchwords would prevail at Geneva this week.

PREMIER'S ASSURANCE TO U.S.A.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, who was greeted with a storm of cheering when he rose to make his promised statement on the meaning of the Lausanne agreement, exhaustively reviewed the reparations and war debts problems from all angles.

While reparations lasted, he declared, there could be no complete economic recovery for the world.

The results of the Lausanne Conference could, he believed, lead to a settlement of the reparations problem, but until Germany recovered as a world factor there could be no recovery for us.

ISOLATION.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald went on to deal with the difficulties confronting the world in achieving a solution of inter-governmental obligations. Under the system which they hoped to bring to an end, Germany paid reparations to the European Allies and the Allies paid war debts to the United States.

Each of these three groups quite properly refused to treat its contractual obligations as to mix itself up with the position of any of the others.

The German Chancellor, Herr Von Papen declined throughout to admit that Allies war debts to America were any affair of his, while Washington said it could not consider debts from the viewpoint of its debtors, who were the recipients of reparations.

Fortunately, the gist of speeches and the other expressions of American public opinion amounted to this: "Let Europe decide on the practical settlement for itself. Let it publish its views and we shall consider reasonably what is the part which America, in equity, can play."

GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT.

Much had been written about the so-called "Gentlemen's agreement."

Apparently that arose out of the reply he made at last Friday's plenary session to a question put to him by the German Chancellor as to whether, if their plan failed, the Germans would be guaranteed that another conference would follow. He replied that it certainly would. Instead of allowing Germany to fall back on the Young Plan, they agreed that they would, in such an event, take up the matter again and see if some other method were available.

They were, however, convinced that their plan would not fall through.

The substance of the Gentlemen's Agreement had been publicly announced on Friday. Without it, the British delegates would have been in a difficult position when the Italian and French re-

UNITED STATES SUSPICIOUS

Gentlemen's Agreement
Statement

Washington, July 12.

The United States is not bound in any way by any supposed Gentlemen's agreement, either expressly or by implication, declared Senator Borah this afternoon, quoting Mr. H. L. Stimson, the Secretary of State, in the Senate, with Mr. Stimson's authorisation.—Reuter.

ORANGEMEN AVOW LOYALTY

REMARKABLE SCENE
AT BELFAST

(Reuter's Special Service).

Belfast, July 12.

Remarkable scenes were witnessed at Belfast to-day when a hundred thousand Orangemen gathered in a field just outside the city and proclaimed their loyalty to the King and their belief in the Empire and faith in the Protestant Church.

The occasion of the demonstration was the two hundred and forty-second anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

There was a five mile long procession from the city to the scene of the celebrations.

Representatives said: "You will get your agreement if you now excuse us all our debts." The British delegation had replied "You must wait and see." The British Government is not out to make any profit on anything it receives from reparations and war debts.

NO BLAME.

None has a right, he went on, to blame America for taking up her attitude. Had we all got together our work would have been simplified, but America felt she had to be consistent and I for one—although America has never uttered a pledge nor in any way indicated how far she is prepared to meet us—believe that there is no nation in the world more ready to lend a hand in straightening out the entanglements and trouble with which we are now surrounded than America and her people.

In view of the serious results likely to follow upon any suggestion that Europe had combined, simply to present something in the nature of an ultimatum to the United States, I wish to make it perfectly clear that all Lausanne did was to straighten out the internal difficulties of Europe and to agree on proposals which the nations there repre-

STORMY DEBATE IN THE DAIL

THE OATH BILL
RE-BUILT

LAND ANNUITY
DUTY LIST

Dublin, July 12.

After an extremely stormy debate in the Dail Eirann, the Senate's amendment to the Bill for the Abolition of the Oath of Allegiance, was rejected.

The voting gave the de Valera Government a majority of ten, 71 voting in favour of rejection and 61 against.

The Senate, it will be recalled, threw out Section Two of the Bill, its most essential part, providing for the deletion of that part of the Free State Constitution Act giving the Treaty of 1922 the force of law.

Other amendments were also passed by the Senate, altering the Bill beyond recognition. The other changes are also certain of rejection by the Dail.

SUSPENSION LIKELY.

After the Dail has restored the Bill to its original form, the Bill will be returned to the Senate, which will, most probably, refuse to accept it.

The Bill will then remain in suspense for a period of eighteen months unless Mr. de Valera decides upon some other course of action.

In the meantime, it is learned that the British Government are proceeding to action upon the basis of the Free State Special Duties Bill, which is designed to enable the collection of the land annuities, now being withheld by the Irish Government, by means of a duty upon Irish imports into Britain. The duties will cease to operate immediately the funds required to meet the obligation have been collected.

TREASURY ORDER.

A Treasury Order issued in London last night imposes a duty of twenty per cent. ad valorem on the following imports into Britain from the Irish Free State, as from Thursday next:

- Live animals, for food.
- Live animals, not for food.
- Butter.
- Eggs.
- Cream.
- Bacon.
- Pork.
- Poultry.
- Game.
- Other meat of all kinds.

The duties are, it will be seen, to be imposed upon every kind of Irish farm produce, the Free State's principal exports.—Reuter.

THE AGENDA FOR OTTAWA

A COMPREHENSIVE
DISCUSSION

London, July 12.

The agenda for the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa has been issued. It includes discussion of trade and tariffs policy, the extension to the whole Commonwealth of all Empire Preferences, and the extension of tariff advantages accorded to foreign countries to all the members of the Commonwealth.

The agenda also includes export bounties, and anti-dumping duties within the Commonwealth.

Discussion of commercial treaty policy includes the interpretation of the most-favoured nation clause. The basis and means of Imperial co-operation will be considered, including industrial co-operation, the various currencies and monetary standards within the Empire, and the feasibility and desirability of restoring and stabilising the general price level and the stabilising of exchanges.—Reuter.

OCCUPY MANCHURIA
NEUTRAL ZONE.

Harbin, July 13.

Chinese Eastern Railway circles state that information has been received telegraphically from Manchuli, on the Manchuria-Soviet border, disclosing that Soviet troops are advancing towards the frontiers and are now occupying the middle of the three-mile neutral zone established by the Habarovsk Protocol.

The report is denied by the Japanese Military Command, but nevertheless it is generally believed to be true.—Reuter.

VERITY'S FINE
FEAT

Hedley Verity, the Yorkshire left-handed slow bowler, achieved a phenomenal feat at Leeds yesterday, taking all ten Notts wickets in their second innings for 10 runs!

The Notts-Yorkshire match, won by the Tykes by ten wickets, was also notable for the fact that Yorkshire declared their first innings closed while still 71 runs in arrears of the Notts first innings total. The move was attended by wonderful rewards. Notts were dismissed for 67 and Yorkshire then made 139 for 0 wicket.

Gloucester at last achieved another victory and Middlesex registered a sound victory. J. C. White took 15 wickets for 96 runs for Somerset. Numerous centuries were scored, and the details will be found on the Sports Page.

NEW YORK AGAIN ON UPGRADE

TIGERS & ATHLETICS
DEFEATED

New York, July 12.

The Athletics and Detroit were both beaten to-day and the Yankees are beginning to re-establish their clear superiority over their rivals in the American League.

Chapman hit a home run for the Yankees while Al Simmons (Aths) and Morgan (Indians) both hit for the circuit when Cleveland outlived Philadelphia.

Eight errors in the field accounted for Chicago's defeat by Washington.

Watkins and Jimmy Collins hit home runs to enable St. Louis to snatch victory from the Phillies, for whom Whitney and V. Davis homered.

Frederick hit a home run for Brooklyn at Pittsburgh, but the Pirates continued their winning streak.

MIDNIGHT CAR SMASH

NARROW ESCAPES OF EUROPEAN

OVER A 20-FOOT
EMBANKMENT

Remarkable escapes from serious injury were the good fortune of Mr. G. G. Stopani Thompson and a lady friend when a Hongkong Hotel car in which they were proceeding along the Island Road, at about midnight, went over an embankment.

Although the car toppled down a bank of more than 20 feet and struck a tree before reaching the bottom of a gully, Mr. Thompson and the lady were not injured beyond a few minor scratches.

The driver, Cheng Kam, was less fortunate, being injured in the back, but his condition is not regarded as serious.

It appears that the mishap occurred on an incline about a mile from Aberdeen. The car was proceeding towards Pokfulam, and was ascending the hill. The driver, it is understood, changed gear, causing, it is thought, the vehicle to swerve and shoot over the side of the road.

"ROLLY-POLLY"

The car turned over and over two or three times and crashed against a tree before its downward career was checked.

Police from Aberdeen Station, apprised of the occurrence, hastened to the spot expecting to discover the occupants seriously hurt, and were agreeably surprised when they discovered Mr. Thompson and the lady standing beside the wrecked car.

The driver, who had also been flung clear, was the only person injured to any extent, and he was promptly taken to the Government Civil Hospital.

MOTOR CARS IN COLLISION

LOCAL DOCTOR'S
ESCAPE

Dr. J. H. Montgomery, of the Matilda Hospital, was involved in a motor car collision yesterday, but escaped injuries.

About 6.15 p.m., he was returning to town intending to drive up to Mongkeichong Gap. Whilst rounding a bend, his car came into collision with another private car, owned by a Mr. Lee, of 25, Seymour Road, which had entered the bend from the opposite direction. Dr. Montgomery's car appears to have escaped lightly from the collision, a smashed offside mudguard and headlight being all that was suffered. The extent of the damage suffered by the other car is not stated. No-one was injured.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Refusing to ruff, but instead making a valuable discard, gave Mr. Richard Frey of New York, four odd on the following hand.

The Bidding.

Neither side were vulnerable. South passed, West bid one heart, North passed and Mr. Frey, holding the East hand, bid one spade. South bid two diamonds, West went to three spades and Mr. Frey took the contract to four spades.

The Play.

The jack of clubs was opened by South which Mr. Frey, the declarer, won with the ace immediately returning the six of hearts which South won with the ace. South led the ten of clubs which the dummy ruffed with the eight of spades. Mr. Frey's next play was the king of hearts from dummy, following with the six from his own hand. He then led the queen of hearts from dummy and when North trumped with the jack of spades, Mr. Frey refused to overtrump, with the king of spades, but instead discarded the six of clubs. This play later made it possible for the declarer to pick up North's trump.

It was necessary for North to lead a diamond or South's ace of diamonds would go to sleep. When North led the diamond, declarer played the seven and South won the trick with the ace. South returned a diamond which the declarer won with the queen. He then led his king of trump and a small trump to dummy's ace. On the king of diamonds, in dummy, declarer discarded his last losing club.

By refusing to overtrump North's jack of spades, Mr. Frey made his contract of four odd.

"STRONG MAN" CULT

REV. E. L. ALLEN ADDRESSES ROTARY CLUB

LOOKING AHEAD

"I believe that we should resolutely put aside this longing for a Superman and go boldly forward in the path of democracy. The times in which we live are not an appeal for a dictator who will jockey us all into happiness and prosperity, but for a few hundred thousand ordinary people who will seek a little more knowledge and develop a little more courage," said the Rev. Dr. E. L. Allen during an address on "The Cult of the Strong Man" at yesterday's Rotary Club time.

"How very interesting it would be," said Dr. Allen, "to take a leap into the year 1982 and to see what shape the history of our time had begun to take by then in men's minds. I am sure the historian of 50 years hence will have a great deal to say about the political and economic questions which are our main pre-occupation, and perhaps he will have something also to say of the many uncertainties which beset us in private and family life. But I hope he will not admit one feature which is to me among the most important and most interesting—what I would call the cult of the strong man. Let me explain what I mean by this.

"During the war, as in all wars, there was a demand for a new type of leader, for the man of iron will and resolute action, who would concentrate on the one thing that mattered and brush everything else aside to deal with the necessities of the hour. We had such men in Kitchener, Foch and Clemenceau, or, if we were on the other side, in Hindenburg and Ludendorff. The war, passed on, but this mentality remained—this craving for the man of clear head and strong will who would get things done, the man who would make a clean sweep of precedents and traditions and vested interests and cut a way for us through the thicket in which we found ourselves.

New Type of Leader.

"As the war came to an end, we grew tired of the soldier and we turned to a very different kind of man, if not to the 'philosopher turned king' of whom Plato spoke, at any rate to a University Professor turned President.

"We remember the tremendous enthusiasm which greeted Woodrow Wilson when he set foot on the shores of Europe. He was the New World come to the deliverance of the Old; he was the political Messiah, and nowhere was his popularity higher than in Germany itself.

"On the other side of Europe, when in Russia, war had bred revolution, famine and the break-up of all moral standards, a very different figure rose—that of Lenin. These men have gone but others have come to take their place. We call such men 'popular idols'. There is a significance in that word 'idol', for it suggests that we are half aware that what we are giving to them is something not so very far removed from religious veneration. It is strange, indeed, that this rationally-minded 20th. century of ours should have produced so many demigods of worship.

"Let us run very rapidly over the list of strong men in the post-war world. First and foremost there is Mussolini and the series of Fascist dictatorships modelled in other countries on his.

"At the moment, the destinies of Russia are in the hands of Stalin, with his new religion of the tractor and his plan to compress centuries of evolution into half a generation. China has had its Sun Yat-sen, and half a dozen war lords have been hailed in turn during the last few years as the strong men who were to unite and reorganise the country.

Germany's Strong Man.

"In Germany, Hindenburg provides the one instance of a war lord who has survived into the peace in the same capacity, and now he has a rival in Hitler, head of a great movement. Most remarkable of all in the two great democracies of Britain and the United States, each Prime Minister and each President has been hailed in turn the 'man of destiny' who was to lead the country into an era of prosperity.

"Without trying to bring all these instances of hero-worship under one head, can we offer any explanation of this series of phenomena? I see in it a compensation for the sense of impotence and frustration under which the mass of mankind has suffered now for years; we worship the strong man because we know ourselves to be weak.

"The origin of this widespread feeling of powerlessness is easy to trace. It goes back eventually to the disillusionment of the returned soldier when he came back from the War to find that everything in the World had changed beyond recognition except of the men who ruled it.

A Reason for the Cult.

"It has a strong support too in the fear which haunts so many to-day, the fear that there is a place for them in the scheme of things only till such time as a machine has been invented to take their place. Then there is the fact that the rapid extension of the franchise in so many countries has brought into power a new democracy, just at one of the most difficult periods of history, so that they are not yet equal to their task.

"In a very simple way we seek relief from all this impotence, but it is a false relief. A boy was brought up to believe that cricket was the finest of all games—as of course it is—but he was himself quite hopeless at it. What did he do? He constructed for himself a phantasmagoria of a great cricketer with the features of 'W.G.' who knocked his records and everybody else's into a cocked hat. Just as this lad got out of this figure of the marvellous cricketer, the satisfaction which his own sorry performances could never yield him, so we console ourselves for our own powerlessness and failure by a phantasmagoria of the super-man, the dictator—call him what you will. That this is the origin of such a figure is shown by the fact that each of us has some private prescription which we are sure would cure the world's maladies, but which we know nobody is likely to adopt, and it is just this that we imagine the strong man is doing! We would dearly love to abolish the 'dole' or, on the other hand, to take everybody's income above a certain level to maintain the unemployed, and we write to the papers to say that what the country wants is a Mussolini who will do just this.

A Grave Danger.

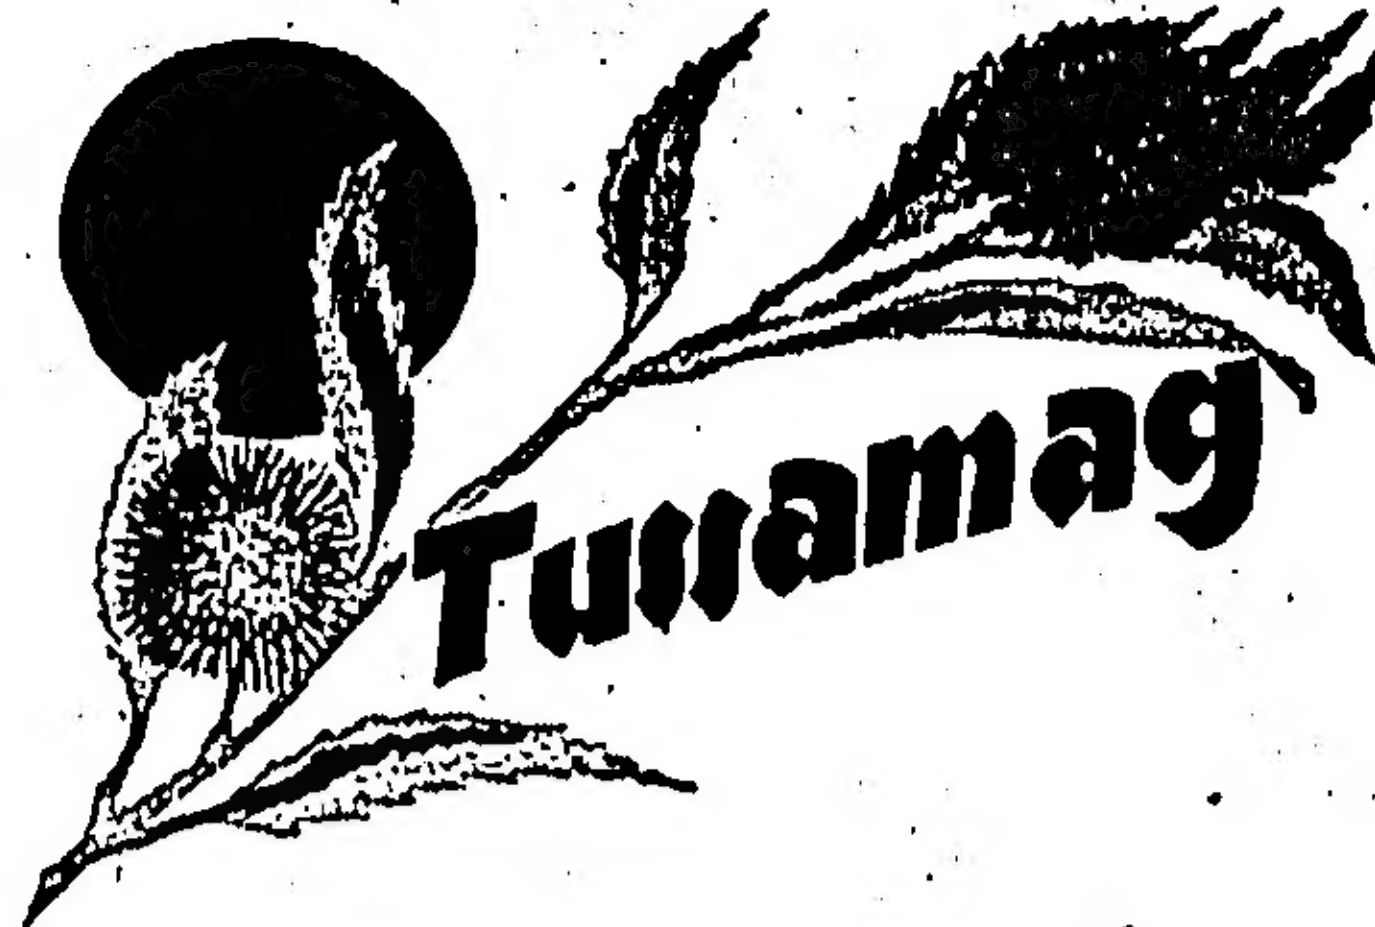

"But there is more to it than that. I believe there is a grave danger in this modern cult, especially for nations which, rightly or wrongly, have committed themselves to the enterprise of democracy. The attraction of the dictator is that he relieves us from individual responsibility and the necessity for individual effort and presents us with a ready-made mass-salvation.

"There is a craving in human nature to take the easy way, to put off on to other people what we know we ought to do ourselves. It is a far easier thing to put the hero on a pedestal and burn incense before him than to try to do the heroic thing in a small way oneself! Remember that there is all the difference in the world between the strong man and the genuine leader: the one does things for us, the other enables us to do them for ourselves.

"You see, as long as we have persuaded ourselves that the world is in such a pass that only a dictator, a Superman, a twentieth century demigod can do anything with it, we ordinary people can just sit back and do nothing, for the matter is clearly out of our hands!

"The fact is that we have looked at these men in the wrong light. They are not a refuge from our powerlessness but a proof that we

THE PROSPECTS FOR OTTAWA

To-day, the British delegation to the Ottawa Conference departs from England. The gathering which it is to attend is one in which great hopes are centred. It can, in fact, be stated that no Imperial Conference yet held is comparable to this Ottawa meeting, at which a tremendous effort will be made to devise schemes not only in the interest of Empire trade but also covering problems affecting the whole world. As Mr. Ramsay MacDonald stated in the course of his Empire Day broadcast speech, the British Government has been engaged for months past in working out with painstaking care a precise programme—lists of duties, their purposes, and how and where they can be modified. In that task it has taken into consultation representatives of the great industries, both from employers' federations and trade unions. The delegation therefore leave England having studied, with a thoroughness never before devoted to the subjects, every aspect of the problem of Imperial Preference as a means of promoting Imperial unity, and increasing the volume of Empire trade and labour.

There has been an idea prevalent in some quarters that the Ottawa Conference is likely to be a self-centred movement, directed against other nations than those within the British Commonwealth. That is not so. Its object, as the British Prime Minister has pointed out, is to lay the foundations of an economic policy which will be mutually helpful to members of the Commonwealth, but which will not be paralysing to general world commerce. By concentrating on the task of creating freer trade conditions over a vast area of the world, the Ottawa

Conference hopes to open up the way to better contacts with all nations. Mr. Kunciman recently put the position in a nutshell when he declared that "we are prepared to encourage trade with any country, provided they give us a chance. It is because the Dominions are giving us a greater chance than any other countries that our hearts are open to them. Our legislation is devised in their interest, and we shall go to the Conference at Ottawa determined to do everything we can to dovetail those interests for the future." It must be remembered in this connection that one-third of Britain's population is directly concerned in overseas trade, and it is therefore essential that that trade shall be maintained. Tariff barriers prevent British goods and services being transferred, and they add materially to international difficulties. On the other hand, these problems are not encountered to nearly the same extent when it comes to Britain's contact with the Dominions. So the British delegation will go to Ottawa determined to take a broad view, with the predominant aim of helping all who are prepared to become equal partners in the great Empire. Canada has already given an indication of its good faith in the lengthy list of duty-free Empire products. We have no doubt that the Mother Country and the other Dominions will be found equally responsive.

The Duke of Connaught recently gave voice to a fact when he asserted that in the past the various parts of the Empire have taken too narrow a view of their special interests. The Ottawa Conference provides the means of discovering methods by which each unit can promote the prosperity of the whole, stop the separatist drift, and set a course towards a new unity based on free co-operation. The opportunity is unprecedented. That it will be freely seized there can be no two opinions. Indeed, it is not too much to say that Ottawa may well mark the beginning of a great new era of benefit alike to the Empire and the world at large.

Why Worry?

Of all the habits which tend to throw one's mind out of gear, worry is by far the most common. Worries, some people think, are inevitable; to be told not to worry is a most unhelpful piece of advice. This mental habit, however, is an unnecessary way of meeting difficulties. It is the difficulties, and the threats of unhappiness if they are not surmounted, which are inevitable. Worry consists in a passive, scared contemplation of this associated possibility of unhappiness. People with this temperament direct their thoughts more to the consequences of failure than to a solution of the difficulty itself. Probably they set too much store by their own personal happiness; probably they are not good at solving problems; but most common of all, the difficulty is not soluble because it has not yet arisen. The remedy for worry then is fairly obvious; allow yourself to think only of those problems of which all the circumstances are clearly known. These, it will be granted, are the problems of the immediate present. There is great wisdom in the late Sir William Osler's advice, "Live for the day—live neither in the past nor in the future, but let each day's work absorb your entire energies." Most of the day's difficulties are so easily soluble. Think of the effort required to foretell the solution six months ago—and the worry involved! We can see to-day's problems for exactly what they are, whereas those of to-morrow are shrouded in mist. The fear of the unknown. Happiness will always escape those who are constantly thinking of the future with fear and foreboding. But if your sole object is to do the day's work—and play—as well as you are able, it is almost impossible to make this mistake. Few people would fail to achieve such an ambition. In fact, the only failure in life would be those with no work to do. This remedy for worry does not preclude a wise forethought. Nel-

DAY BY DAY

NOT WEALTH, BUT ONLY HEROIC MEN AND NOBLE WOMEN CAN MAKE A NATION GREAT, BRAVE AND STRONG.

The French Community at Canton will celebrate July 14th by giving a reception at the Canton Club, Shamoen, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Among the passengers for Hongkong who arrived on the President Hoover on Monday was Mrs. Charles L. Wakefield of Dallas, Texas, who will visit her daughter, Mrs. Thomas C. Barringer, of 24, Peak Mansions.

We are informed by Messrs. Lane, Crawford that the whole of their bakery, confectionery and catering department staff, from the manager down to the lowest-paid coolie, are being inoculated as a precaution against cholera.

The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation advertise that an Interim Dividend of 23 per share, subject to deduction of Income Tax, has been declared for the half year ending June 30, 1932, payable on and after Monday, August 8.

Six men were charged before the Hon. Comdr. Hole, at the Marine Court this morning, with having boarded the s.s. Bremerhaven without permission. Five of them were fined $50 or six weeks' imprisonment each, while the third was remanded until to-morrow in order that a previous conviction may be proved against them.

Our Canton correspondent reports that Mr. Jerrold, a member of the Federated Malay States Police, has recovered from cholera. He will shortly be leaving for Hongkong with a view to obtaining permission to take a holiday in Japan, before resuming his duties in Canton. The other members of the Malay Police have now been permitted to leave Shamoen and return to Tungshan, since the epidemic seems to be now dying out. These young men have been sent to Canton to study Cantonese.

son is said to have had plans ready for almost any eventuality which might occur. To evolve such plans is part of the day's work. To live through the difficulties as if they were present, experiencing already the dread of failure, is not forethought, but mere pessimistic day-dreaming. When ambition is limited to what can be accomplished to-day, this curse of modern life has little chance.

WHERE IS MODERNISM LEADING US?

I HAVE been reading over again correspondence published recently on religion, and I am going to ask and attempt to answer the question, "Where is modern thought leading us?" It challenges the entire groundwork of our Orthodox faith; it cries aloud for the immediate abandonment of certain non-essential dogmas.

After studying this correspondence I think most unprejudiced minds would admit that there is enough evidence here to show that our older interpretation of Christianity and the Bible is bolstered up with relics of Pagan superstitions. Is based upon inadequate historical evidence.

Is full of contradictions. Is contrary to Science. Our increasing knowledge shows us that the myths, miracles, and mysteries of older Pagan religions are so similar to those of Christianity that the similarity cannot be accounted for by the word "coincidence." The only answer which the champions of Orthodoxy gave to this contention was that these "Pagan illustrations prove nothing." But, surely, they prove exactly what they are intended to prove—that there is a striking similarity between the mysteries of Christianity and those of old Pagan religions.

Such an author as J. B. Hannay tells us that throughout the Old and the New World, in the legends of every religion, there are hundreds of Gods, or Sons of God, who came down to earth to teach and save men. He gives us a formidable list of 26 Pagan Saviours who were born of virgin mothers to save mankind. These legends, in many respects, bear striking resemblance to the stories told about Jesus.

Students of Mithraism, which was Christianity's most powerful rival for hundreds of years, are convinced that Christianity absorbed many of its doctrines and ceremonies, even its phraseology.

Mithra's resurrection took place from a rock tomb. The Pagans had a sacred banquet of seven. Dionysos turned water into wine. Poseidon walked on water. Dionysos also rode on two asses. Aesculapius raised the dead, and gave sight to the blind. Horos was born in a stable. One of the Mithraic rites was a sacramental Eucharist in which the elements used were bread and water. It was not until the second century of Christianity that the celebration of the Last Supper became a sacrament, and wine was substituted for water.

Historical Evidence.

The recent study of ancient sun and sex worship shows conclusively that these forms of Paganism became welded together, and that every religion in the world has been influenced by these beliefs, up to the present day.

The historical evidence at our disposal is sufficient to prove that Jesus was a real historical character, Who was opposed to the hypocrisy and outward show of the Orthodoxy of His day and Who taught a doctrine of loving kindness. But we have no historical evidence at all for believing in His virgin birth, His bodily resurrection, and many of the Pagan beliefs which have grown up around His person. As Dean Inge says, "the philosophers of every age have used His name as a peg upon which to hang their views of the universe. Christ taught no dogmas, creeds, ceremonies or sacraments. There was no 'Christian' in Galilee till there were Christians in every part of the Roman Empire.

"The sites associated with the life of Christ were unknown till the fourth century, when they were 'discovered' at the command of the pious Empress Helena, the mother of the murdered Constantine."

The "Encyclopaedia Biblica" was compiled by the most learned scholars of the English Church. In speaking of parts of the Old Testament they say—"To us the greatest part of the material is not in any proper sense historical at all." In reference to Christ's resurrection they say—"It is undeniable that the Church was founded, not directly upon the fact of the Resurrection of Jesus, but upon the belief in His Resurrection; and this faith worked with equal power whether the Resurrection was an actual fact or not!" The Rev. Canon O. C. Quick, M.A., says:—"The veil of the awful mystery up to which St. Mark's unfinished gospel leads us is not likely to be lifted very much further by all the researches of the critics."

Modern thought is quite clear about the fact that for many old beliefs there is simply no historical evidence of all. St. Matthew's story in chapter XXVII. verses 51-53, that there was an earthquake, the graves opened and the bodies of the saints which slept arose, "And came out of the graves, after His Resurrection and went into the holy city, and appeared to many," is not corroborated by a single historian, nor by the other Gospels. A stupendous happening of this kind could not have been overlooked in this way.

If, then, the Bible is fallible, it is surely only by using our God-given gift of reason that we can discover what spiritual truth, if any, it has to offer us.

Biblical Contradictions.

Orthodox believers refuse to admit that the Bible is full of contradictions. In St. Matthew we are given to understand that it was so clearly known that Jesus had claimed that He would rise again, after three days that, after His death, the Pharisees and chief priests went to Pilate saying—"Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while He was yet alive, After three days I will rise again." See also St. Mark chapter VIII. verses 31-32, and St. Matthew chapter XVI. verses 21-22. Yet in chapter XX St. John is telling us about Mary Magdalene running to tell Simon Peter and the other disciple whom Jesus loved, about His resurrection and at verse 9, he says—"For as yet they knew not the Scriptures, that He must rise again, from the dead." I ask in all sincerity of heart and mind what does it all mean?

Again, turn to Mark chapter X verses 29-30. The Gospels, which were written generations after Christ's death, are mentioned in His life time. His followers did not receive the promises, now in this time; while it seems as though a redactor has been at work on the passage to spiritualise the human promise by adding "with persecution," also including the spiritualised promise of "eternal life."

It would be easy to multiply examples of this kind, but these two will suffice.

Whatever view we take of the Bible account of creation; whether or not the word "day" means "an indefinite period of time," the fact is clear that until scientific knowledge came men had narrow, childish views about the stupendous mystery of creation. Without the wider, nobler scientific outlook on life, with its growing knowledge of the vastness of the heavenly firmament, men would never have altered their cramped, narrow ideas about the universe.

The stories of Adam and Eve, the Virgin birth, the fall of man, the bodily resurrection, the doctrine of hell and eternal punishment, etc., which were all "essentials" of the old religion, are now admitted to be non-essential by the most serious-minded and intelligent of our Protestant ministers. By this they mean that we must open our eyes to the fact that Christianity is tainted with Pagan superstition.

Modernism believes in the evolutionary theory of religions, just as it believes in the evolution of our laws and customs (our bodies and our minds). It is busily engaged in clearing away the dead wood from the growing tree of religion. It shows us the Bible and the whole history of mankind in a new light. Creeds, ceremonies, sacraments, and symbols are merely the trappings of religion.

Real religion is the law of loving kindness, which will eventually build heaven upon earth.

We squabble and fight about the Divinity of Christ, because we have not yet realised that what He tried to teach us was the Divinity of Humanity. We are all sons and daughters of God. When we come to believe this there will be no need for any child to be "born in sin" because all children will be conceived of the spirit as well as the body. We can never hope to build heaven upon earth till we believe in the divinity of humanity.

sented believed to be essential". They had not agreed to merely another sealing down in reparations.

FINANCIAL PLAN.

As to the financial plan, three milliards of Reich-marks were to be paid to the Bank of International Settlements by the German Government to be kept in trust. After many arguments, they settled on a three years' complete moratorium and devised a means whereby the Bank of International Settlements should themselves decide when the bonds were to be put on the market.

By ending reparations, industry had been given a chance of recovery.

"You never received a reparations payment yet, he said, but you paid more away for it than you got. The shrinkage in two years in the exports of the four chief trading nations is ten times as great as the maximum annuity due last year."

SECOND PHASE.

Preparatory work for the second phase of the conference had already been begun by the League of Nations. The United States had expressed willingness to attend a World Economic Conference. He himself was not in favour of holding it at Geneva.

Concluding the Premier said that Europe had still to dissipate the surviving atmosphere of the war. Germany must be brought back into ordinary inter-national relationship. He was glad to say that Lausanne brought Britain and France nearer, France nearer to Germany and Germany nearer to Britain. They must try and get the difficulties removed by applying increasingly the spirit of the League Covenant. The British Government would continue its good offices for peace. The work had only begun. Disarmament opened up new ways and they might be very broad ways.

CHANCELLOR'S VIEW.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared that all the Lausanne Conference Powers, having followed the advice of the United States in harmonising their differences, believed that the United States would give ready and willing co-operation at the proper moment.

If cancellation all round was found to be impossible, "we must wait and see what the United States proposed as an alternative before we decided what to propose to the Allies."

OPPOSITION WANT CLEAN SLATE.

Mr. George Lansbury, leader of the Opposition, and Mr. Lloyd George supported the policy of the clean slate.

Mr. Lloyd George declared: "We should have wiped the slate clean and then asked the United States what she was prepared to do."

"If America insisted," he said, "then Britain should say, very well, we will pay."

This attitude was held by Mr. Neville Chamberlain to be quite unreasonable.

Sir John Simon later announced that he had telegraphed to France and Italy for consent to publish the Lausanne document.

DEBATE ENDS.

The largest and most important result of the Conference, he declared, was the enormous psychological change in the peoples of Europe.

Dealing with disarmament, Sir John Simon urged the House not to treat the British counter-proposals to the Hoover Scheme as trumpets and ill-conceived. He added that nothing was more vital to the cause of disarmament than the effective stopping of the abominable practice of indiscriminate air bombing.

The debate concluded and the Consolidated Fund Bill which was the subject matter of the whole debate was given a third reading. Reuter and British Wireless.

THE AMERICAN ANGLE

NOTHING EXPECTED AT THIS TIME.

It seems highly improbable that any direct approach will be made to the United States by Britain or any other of her debtors in the immediate future.

The war debts tangle will probably be allowed to lie until the World Economic Conference which the United States proposes to attend, in November next. The whole issue will then be thrashed out in the light of the new situations created by the Lausanne Agreement and the result of the Presidential Election. Meanwhile, America is "ready to hear appeals of the European

'PLANE FOR THE STRATOSPHERE

PARIS TO NEW YORK IN SIX HOURS

Paris, June 17. The "stratosphere" aeroplane, on which work has been going on for eighteen months in the greatest secrecy, will shortly undergo preliminary trials at the Toussus-le-Noble aerodrome.

This will be the first stratosphere aeroplane ever to fly. It is a large 500 h.p. monoplane with a specially constructed air and pressure-roof cabin. As to its speed possibilities the experts are not yet certain in view of the many difficulties to be overcome, and the testing is expected to be long and delicate.

In spite of the exploits of Professor Piccard, it is not yet known what is to be met with at a given altitude. It is believed that at a certain altitude a current of air travels from west to east at a speed of over one hundred miles an hour, in which case there would be a serious obstacle for an aeroplane flying from Europe to America. Professor Piccard did not meet with this current of air.

Hopes are entertained, however, of attaining a speed of 500 miles an hour at a height of between 10,000 and 18,000 feet—which would put New York within some six hours of Paris.

Fatal injuries led to the death in hospital of Chan He, a woman cook, who yesterday accidentally fell off scaffolding at the old dam at Aberdeen. She dropped down a height of 50 feet, and fractured her skull.

Three sets of motor tyres and tubes, valued at $200, are reported by Mr. H. Summers, living at Ngau Sh Wan Villas, as having been stolen from his garage situated 50 yards from his house on the Sailing Road.

In attempting to cross the road in front of an approaching hire car in Queen's Road East, near Antung Street yesterday, a girl Chan Lam-hing, aged 13, was knocked down by the car but was not seriously injured. She was taken to hospital.

Powers for reduction of debts, without making any promises of revision."

HOOVER ATTITUDE.

President Hoover has stated that he holds to the views in his special message to Congress asking ratification of the one-year moratorium.

"I wish to take this occasion also to frankly state my views upon our relations to German reparations and the debts owed us by the allied governments of Europe. Our government has not been a party to, or exerted any voice in determination of, reparations obligations. We purposely did not participate in either general reparations or the division of colonies or property."

EUROPEAN PROBLEM.

"The repayment of debts due to us from the Allies for the advances for war and reconstruction were settled upon a basis not contingent upon German reparations or related thereto. Therefore reparations is necessarily wholly a European problem with which we have no relation."

"I do not approve in any remote sense of the cancellation of the debts owed to us. World confidence would not be enhanced by such action. None of our debtor nations has ever suggested it. But as the basis of the settlement of these debts was the capacity under normal conditions of the debtor to pay, we should be consistent with our own policies and principles if we take into account the abnormal situation now existing in the world."

"I am sure the American people have no desire to attempt to extract any sum beyond the capacity of any debtor to pay, and it is our view that broad vision requires that our government should recognize the situation as it exists."

AMOUNTS OF DEBTS.

The status of the foreign debts owed to the United States as on June 30, 1931, was:

Austria	$24,040,000
Belgium	404,730,000
Czechoslovakia	170,071,000
Ethiopia	13,830,000
Finland	8,650,000
France	3,865,000,000
Great Britain	4,426,000,000
Greece	31,760,000
Hungary	1,920,000
Italy	2,017,000,000
Latvia	5,775,000
Lithuania	6,235,000
Poland	178,560,000
Rumania	64,661,000
Yugoslavia	61,850,000

The foregoing sums represent the debts as funded by individual agreements after interest and principal had been sealed down by the United States.

Against these obligations, since the war, there has been paid a total of $443,311,000 in principal sums and $1,231,373,000 as interest, by far the largest sums in each instance by Great Britain.

CARE OF TEETH

During the last few years people everywhere have shown more intelligent interest in the proper care of the teeth. Dental experts in public schools teach children the proper way to clean the teeth and gums, and dentists give their patients many helpful suggestions.

A widespread educational campaign are already beginning to appear. More and more people are brushing their teeth regularly and thus avoiding the decay that often means toothache and loss of teeth, if not stopped in time.

Dentists know that any of the tooth brushes and tooth pastes on the market will clean the teeth fairly well and remove most of the food particles that cause decay. But there are certain things to watch for, in choosing brushes and pastes, if one is anxious to get the best results.

Some tooth pastes contain gritty particles, or strong cleaning materials, that quickly whiten discoloured teeth. The results naturally please the user and he is liable to feel that other tooth pastes, that do not work so quickly, are not as good. Usually this is a mistake. A tooth paste can easily be so strong or so harsh that it injures the tooth enamel, and causes damage that cannot be repaired. There are many mild and safe tooth pastes to choose from. One of the most popular is Listerine Tooth Paste, which sells at a lower price than most tooth pastes of equal quality.

Tooth brushes, too, vary widely in their cleaning powers. Almost all tooth brushes will do a first-class job on the front teeth, that are easy to reach, but only a brush that is specially designed can reach around and between the back teeth where most of the trouble starts. For many years Prophylactic tooth brushes have enjoyed steady sales because their design insures unusually thorough cleaning.

Anyone who will take the trouble to use a safe tooth paste on the right type of brush twice a day, and see a dentist twice a year, can have beautiful teeth and healthy gums. This simple health exercise prevents many unpleasant and unnecessary visits to the dentist, and helps guard general health as well.

THE PRINCE SETS A FASHION

WHITE FELT GOLF HAT

A new fashion in hats was set by the Prince of Wales at the last day of the Open Golf Championship at Sandwich.

The "Tailor and Cutter" describes the hat as being a white felt with the brim turned down all round. It had a green band and the under brim was also of green, forming an excellent shade for the eyes.

The Prince wore with it a double-breasted suit of mid-grey flannel, grey shirt and collar, and regimental tie. His shoes were of the black and white type favoured by many golfers.

A debt is said to have brought about a fight between two men, Chan Kai, a cobbler, and Wong Yun, of no particular occupation, in Yaumatei yesterday. When the fight was over, one man was sent to hospital with an injury to his abdomen and the other with a head wound. Both men are recovering.

NEW POLICE CUTS IN GERMANY

HEAVIER LEVIES ON SALARIES

Berlin, June 13. The German public will for the moment scarcely have any attention to spare for foreign politics however closely they may concern the Reich, for the new financial decree will be issued to-morrow with disagreeable consequences for the majority of the nation.

It is not yet certain how big will be the cut in the already severely reduced rate of unemployment relief. The decree will replace the crisis tax (a graded tax on gross income to finance unemployment relief) with a new "levy" about half as heavy again. The lowest grade of salary up to £75 (gold) a year will pay 1 1/2 per cent, and above £180, it rises to 6 1/2 per cent.

Officials who have hitherto been privileged not to pay this tax owing to the heavy cuts in their salaries are now to contribute 1 1/2 per cent. to unemployment relief. In the case of Prussian officials this means a cut of 4 per cent. imposed during the last ten days. The turnover tax is now to be paid even by businesses whose total transactions do not exceed £250 gold in a year.

Tightening the Belt.

It should be remembered that this is not by any means the first time that the nation has tightened its belt, as the Paris Midi quoted in the Morning Post on Friday, seems to suggest. The Government of Dr. Brüning had already enforced general salary cuts of at least 20 per cent, and last summer increased the tax burden on a very wide class of the community by about 25 per cent. or more.

Herr von Papen's Government cannot be applauded for being the first to try to put Germany's house in order. The last Government had made most praiseworthy, and as far as the world crisis permitted, successful efforts to do so.

The financial measures now to be enforced by the von Papen Cabinet are naturally very similar to those devised by the Brüning Government, since the new Cabinet has not yet had time to develop a financial policy of its own.

The Ministers of the Interior and of Posts have issued a decree to-day giving the Government the right to reserve to itself half an hour on all the broadcasting stations of Germany between 6.30 and 7.30 every day. This time is to be used for promulgating new decrees and for explaining the Government's measures and policy to the general public.

MAN WHO DOMINATED FINE CHINA TRADE

BANKRUPTCY COURT DISCLOSURES.

Mr. Harold Taylor Robinson, of Trent Vale, Stoke-on-Trent, who stated that at one time he was paying £3,000 a week in wages, appeared for his public examination in bankruptcy at Hanley.

Mr. Robinson, who was adjudged bankrupt on his own application, stated that his gross liabilities amounted to £238,706, the amount expected to rank for dividend being £33,546. He valued his net assets at £1,536. The amount of preferential claims given in his statement was £4,699.

Mr. Robinson said that the business being done to-day by firms in the fine china trade had dropped to half what it was two years ago. He added that he had been a director of 32 companies in twelve years. He also stated: "My influence in the fine china trade became so great that I practically dominated it. I was able to keep up the prices of fine china."

The examination was adjourned.

BREWER JUMPS INTO VAT OF BEER

SUICIDE ON ACCOUNT OF FALLING SALES.

Berlin, June 17. A brewer of Pilsen, in Czechoslovakia, has drowned himself in an 8,000-litre vat of his own beer. He was embittered by the failure of beer drinkers to be true to their drink in spite of the crisis.

He had sold 500 litres less beer in May than in the month before, and no longer felt able to face the future. As a last message to his friends, he wrote in chalk on the vat that he would not survive the disgrace of his falling sales, but that his ghost would haunt all the public houses nightly.

He did not make it clear whether his ghost will be public-spirited enough to urge his former customers to drink more, or whether he hopes to disturb the custom of rival brewers.

SOLICITOR LIBELS SOLICITOR

SUICIDE ATTEMPTS STAGED

Henry Harold Kelsey, aged 51, a solicitor, was sentenced at the Old Bailey to four months in the second division on a charge of libel.

Mr. McClure (prosecuting) said that the libel was on a partner in a firm of City solicitors. Kelsey accused the partner of procuring his father to make a new will leaving all his money—about £5,000—to the defendant's sister. There was no ground for the accusation.

Detective Goodhead said that Kelsey practised as a solicitor from 1905 to 1925, when he was made bankrupt. Shortly afterwards he went to Monte Carlo, where he acted as a divorce specialist.

The Recorder (Sir Ernest Wild, K.C.)—Net a bad arena for that class of practice, I should think.

Mr. Butler (defending) urged that Kelsey was in poverty at the time. He took veronal tablets on the Sussex Downs after being committed for trial.

The Recorder said that Kelsey's attempts at suicide were merely staged attempts to draw public attention to himself.

He added that he had ordered Kelsey's bail to be estranged, but as he found that his surety was a poor widow he would order the bail to be removed.

NOT THE REAL MAMMOND.
Hammond, the famous Gloucestershire batsman who is 28, has recently begun to show a little form, but so far there has been no sign of a return of that brilliant form of four and five years back. J. R. Jardine is another young cricketer aged 22 he will captain England in Australia. Appearing as captain of the Surrey side for the first time he scored 164 against Worcester, but his second century has not yet come along.

Although looking at the youthful talent through the most favourably tinted glass one cannot

FORTHCOMING AUSTRALIAN TOUR PROBLEM

VETERANS AS LIKELY MAINSTAY

With the English cricket season becoming more and more advanced, public attention is being centred round the question "Who will go to Australia?"

England's representatives for the visit "Down Under" next winter will within a short time have to be selected. Who will go?

The biggest problem which would appear to face the selectors is the apparent dearth of young players worthy of selection for this important tour, which will offer England an opportunity of regaining the "Ashes."

So far this summer it has been the so-called veterans who have been making the runs and taking the wickets in county cricket. Men such as V.W.C. Jupp, A. P. Freeman, Parker, and Geary among the trundlers and Hendren, Woolley, Holmes and even Hobbs among the run-getters.

TWO YOUNG "POSSIBLES."
Two young batsmen have emerged as "possibles." Edward Paynter, the Lancashire professional, who bats left and bowls right, is one of them. He is just 30 years of age. Last season his form got him a place in the England team against New Zealand.

He went in first with Sutcliffe. But his star was not in the ascendant that day for he was quickly dismissed for three runs. His 98 at Lords against Middlesex was a masterly effort, and he comes once more into the running.

Keeton, the Notts batsman, is another youthful hope. He is 27, and is the first Englishman to score a double century this year.

avoid the conclusion that the England side will have to rely largely upon the tired veterans. And one is forced to speculate upon the possibility of a bad cricketing slump when the older warriors begin to fade out.

First of all there is the over-green Jack Hobbs. He is just bordering on 50, announced his retirement last year and now everyone is wondering whether England can do without him.

SUTCLIFFE AND WOOLLEY.
Up to mid-June he has had a remarkable season—rarely going to the wicket without scoring a good fifty or more. Upon eleven occasions Hobbs and Sutcliffe have put up three-figure partnerships for the wicket against Australia.

Sutcliffe is 38. Not a youngster, but without any doubt the first wicket next autumn in Australia.

Then there is Frank Woolley, the left-handed Kent batsman who has been in marvellous form. One of his latest efforts was 97 at Lords against the M. C. C. It was hard luck he did not reach his century. Going for boundary to reach his hundred he was miraculously caught at mid-on. Forty-five years old, yet he is the one man whom the Australians have most feared in the Test matches since the war. Woolley of course is almost sure to go to Australia. Many of his displays have been described as being efforts worthy of the greatest batsmen of all times.

OTHER CLAIMANTS.
Then there is Hendren. Patsy is 43 years young. That is how he makes one feel in watching him.

HOBBS, who declares he has played his last Test Match, but he is still good enough for more.

WOOLLEY, who is displaying sparkling form this year at the age of 44.

HENDREN, the Middlesex batsman is alleged not to have the Test Match temperament, but he's getting lots of runs lately.

BRIGHT CRICKET AT NANKING

FIRST MATCH SINCE 1926

NAVAL TEAM BEATS THE RESIDENTS

The first cricket match to take place at Nanking since 1926 was played on Saturday, July 2, between a team composed of the residents of Nanking (assisted by H.M.S. Gannet) and H.M.S. Bridgewater. It was played on the recreation ground attached to the Admiralty, the ground being kindly lent for the occasion by Admiral Chen Shao-kuan. The match was twelve a side, and each side were allowed a maximum of 1 hr. 20 min. in which to get runs. This enabled the game to be played in the comparative cool of the evening, produced some bright cricket, and gave nearly everyone an innings.

The residents, who batted first, knocked up 115 runs, and still had two wickets to fall when their allotted time was up. Campbell sent the first two balls to the boundary, and soon after knocked a full pitch into the Admiralty compound. Fanshawe batted in very good style, and he and Washbroke made a very useful last wicket stand, by which the residents' score was doubled. Taylor and Ward bowled well and took most of the wickets.

For the Bridgewater, Taylor and Smythe batted well, quickly knocking up a formidable score. Cartwright, who looked like making runs, was dismissed for 7 by a fine catch on the boundary by Tuson. The fielding of the residents was keen, and no catches were missed. With 12 minutes to go, the ship's side required 14 runs to win, with three wickets to fall. After a fighting finish, the ship's team passed the residents' score with one wicket and a few minutes in hand. For the residents, Wright took four wickets for 17 runs. Washbroke took two for 7 runs, and Graham three for 31 runs. Altogether it was a very enjoyable afternoon, and the loan of the ground by Admiral Chen Shao-kuan was much appreciated.

LONG JUMPER

HAITI, HAITI'S OLYMPIC HOPE

Haiti, Haiti will send only two athletes to the Olympic Games at Los Angeles, but it has high hopes that at least one of them, Sylvio Cator, the world record broad jumper, will bring back the gold medal of victory.

Cator finished second to Ed Hamm of the United States in the 1928 Olympics at Amsterdam. Shortly afterwards in an international meet at the Colombes Stadium, Paris, the Haitian leapt 26 feet, 1/4 inch, to establish a new world record, the first man to clear 26 feet in track and field history.

NEW RIVAL APPEARS.

Hamm is no longer a rival but Cator has heard about the achievements of a Japanese rival, Nambu, who jumped 26 feet, 2 1/4 inches at Tokyo last year. As a result the Haitian has been training for six months, perfecting his form.

Andre Chevalier, president of the Haitian Olympic committee, predicts Cator will better his own world record in the Olympics. In fact it is understood, he has already

"Farmer" White's Harvest

Veteran Takes 15 Wickets

The manner in which Yorkshire beat Notts stands out as an illuminating example of the value of astute captaincy. Notts batted first and compiled 234, but the wicket was obviously none too good and was becoming worse as the game progressed. Acting on this, the Yorkshire skipper actually brought his side's first innings to a close when the score board registered 163 for 9 wickets, this leaving the "Tykes" 71 behind on the first innings. Verity, however, came along to back up the bold move, and on his own dismissed Notts a second time for 67 runs. Yorkshire, set 139 to win, entered upon the task in a carefree manner, and hit the runs off without loss.

This is the second time Verity has taken all ten wickets in one innings, and his latest figures suggest that they constitute something of a record, although Wisden's does not give any comparative feats.

WHITE'S FIFTEEN.

That the old school is keeping cricket alive this summer is further evidenced by the remarkable feat of "Farmer" J. C. White, the Somerset spin bowler, who, against Glamorgan, captured 15 wickets for 96 runs, to enable Somerset to win by an innings. This was another instance where advantage was taken of a sticky wicket, the Somerset innings being closed at 263 for 7 wickets, which left them only 141 runs ahead on the first knock.

The outstanding performance at Blackheath where Kent and Surrey met in their annual conflict was the fine innings of F. R. Brown, the Cambridge player, who scored 168. Brown is not, judging from his record at the University, a batsman, but he played the "Hop" county's attack to allow Surrey to win points on first innings. Leslie Ames followed up his century at Tunbridge Wells with another against Surrey, who only secured a 16-runs advantage.—Reuter.

LEGALITY OF DETAINING PRISONERS

Questions relative to the detention of prisoners under the Deportation Ordinance were asked of Chief Detective Inspector A. N. Reynolds, by Mr. F. H. Losby before Mr. Grantham at the Central Police Court yesterday, in the extradition case in which the Canton Government are seeking Lung Cheung for an alleged crime in Chinese territory.

The fugitive, who was discharged on other proceedings on June 6 last, was represented by Mr. Losby, the Crown case being conducted by Mr. R. E. Lindsell (Assistant Attorney General).

Under cross-examination, Chief Detective Inspector Reynolds denied that it was the practice of the Hongkong Police to detain a man for deportation without caring how he was detained. Prisoners were held as long as the Police were entitled to hold them, and no longer. Occasionally mistakes were made, but they were not made deliberately. Where a man was arrested on a warrant signed by a Magistrate the Police were entitled to disregard the command contained therein requiring them to bring the person arrested before the Magistrate, provided the man did not commit the offence mentioned in the warrant.

The Local Practice.

Mr. Losby: You won't admit that it has been the regular and consistent practice of the Police to arrest people for the purpose of deportation without any proper warrant?

Witness: No I won't admit that. It only happens occasionally?—

Yes.

And when it does happen the practice is to send the usual request for a detention warrant up to the Colonial Secretary's Office?

Yes.

It comes back whether a man is in legal detention or not?—He is released and re-arrested.

When you apply for the detention warrant in such a case do you suppress the fact that the man is already under detention?—It is never necessary to put in whether the man is under detention or otherwise.

Do you suggest that His Excellency the Governor signs this detention warrant blissfully ignorant of the fact that the man may be in illegal detention?

His Worship pointed out that the witness was not in a position to answer that question.

Answering a further question witness said that it was wrong to suggest that the Government made no complaints to the Police if it was discovered that a man was illegally under detention.

Warrant Ignored.

Referring to the provisional warrant issued for the arrest of the fugitive on April 1 the witness said that he had ignored it.

Mr. Losby: In the usual way?—

I ignored it.

In fact, it is not quite true to say you ignored it, only until it was convenient to me and the prisoner.

Mr. Losby pointed out that it was about nine weeks after the warrant was issued that the Police actually arrested the fugitive, and asked if the Police kept the warrant "up their sleeves" for that time.

Witness replied that the fugitive's Counsel was aware of the warrant.

Mr. Losby: Will you tell me why you didn't execute it?—Chiefly as a charge of a similar nature had been preferred against the man and I had no wish to put in to the Magistrate another warrant of the same nature.

I put it to you that your object in holding this up was to get over the inconvenient section that the Magistrate will discharge the fugitive if a requisition did not arrive within reasonable time?—I absolutely deny that.

You will admit it may have that effect?—Yes.

The hearing was adjourned until Saturday next.

THE HEALTH REPORT.

A WEEK'S SURVEY OF INFECTIOUS DISEASE

The Colony's health report for the week ending Saturday, July 9, shows the following cases of infectious disease, and deaths therefrom:

Cholera, 33 cases and 33 deaths (21 from Victoria, 8 from Kowloon and 4 from Shaikwan).

Small-pox, one case and 2 deaths.

Diphtheria, 2 cases.

Typhoid, 11 cases and 2 deaths.

Measles, 2 cases and 2 deaths.

There were also 57 deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis.

Four of the cholera cases were imported.

During the twenty-four hours ended on Monday, only one case of cholera, from the Kowloon district, was reported to the health authorities.

REPORT ON CHINA

CRITICISM OF COMMONS STATEMENT

London, July 12.

That the Government is taking the wrong line in speaking of the "difficulty and expense" in complying with the "extremely modest and well-timed request" of Sir Alfred Knox, in the House of Commons on June 27, is lengthily argued by Mr. P. C. Young in a letter to The Times.

Pleading for the necessity of an early start in the reconstruction of China, "which will be the work of decades rather than years," Mr. Young contends that during the transition period, firm and effective Government is required in Manchuria, where the present unsolved question constitutes a menace to world peace. At the same time, separate special treatment for Shanghai and other foreign concessions was essential, giving the assurance of liberal, effective and enlightened Government, not only on account of foreign interests, but because those regions formed the foci of China's industrial and commercial life and the only safeguard against a complete collapse of governmental authority. Sir Austen Chamberlain's pronouncement regarding the early retrocession was seriously discouraging enterprise.

As regards the rest of China it was regrettable that no official utterance appeared in prospect, notwithstanding Sir Miles Lampson's opportunities of forming a considered opinion.

Therefore Mr. Young hopes the matter will not be allowed to rest in the position indicated in Sir John Simon's reply.—Reuter.

Sir Alfred Knox enquired regarding a report on general conditions in China and Sir John Simon replied that considerable difficulty and expense would be entailed in so doing.

Mr. Young, who is General Manager of the Kailan Mining Administration, was formerly Chairman of the British Municipal Council at Tientsin.

League Mission.

Tokyo, July 12.

The Earl of Lytton has recovered from his illness and attended the League of Nations Commission's conversations with Count Uchida this afternoon. They will be continued on Thursday.

What transpired was not revealed, as the Commission is understood to have requested that the talk be kept private. Prior to to-day's meeting with Count Uchida, representatives of the Students' Patriotic League, comprising 12 Universities, called on the members of the Commission to whom they handed a written petition, signed by 10,000 students, asking the Commission to use fair judgment in their solution of the Sino-Japanese dispute.

Mr. Chiang Tso-pin, who returned to Tokyo yesterday, paid a courtesy visit on Count Uchida this afternoon, when he reported on and discussed current problems.—Reuter.

Points Emphasised.

Tokyo, July 12.

Reports from Japanese sources state a few points believed to have been emphasised by Count Uchida at to-day's meeting with Lord Lytton and the Commission.

They are:

The solution of the Manchurian problem must be permanent. The solution must clear out future obstacles in Manchuria. Japan must recognize the Manchukuo Government, since the Manchukuo is a concrete fact and the Japanese Government is free to acknowledge her as an independent country; therefore it is the Japanese intention of recognition at the earliest date in order to make permanent peace in the Far East.

Japan does not consider such recognition a breach of the Nine Power treaty.

Japan has no intention of annexing the Manchukuo to Japan.

Japan believes that direct negotiations with the National Chinese Government concerning Manchurian questions are senseless, in view that the Manchukuo Government had been established.—Reuter's Special.

NEW WANCHAI FIRE STATION.

NEW BUILDING TO BE OF TEMPORARY NATURE

Additional details are available regarding the new fire station for the Wanchai bridge.

The recent station was merely a temporary affair and was at one time a cinema that was erected before the making of the reclamation. After the reclaimed area had been mapped out and the street lines determined, it was found that this building stood on the lines of one of the roads. It was allowed to remain in use for the time being, but now that it is necessary to complete the road system it has been decided to demolish the structure.

The materials that are still useful are to be used in the erection of another temporary building, larger in size so as to accommodate five pieces of apparatus instead of the three housed in the old building. This new structure, which is to be 60 feet long by 35 feet wide, will take the appearance of the Central Fire Station on Des Voeux Road, and will have five main doorways. It will be built of timber and bricks with a steel and asbestos roof, and will face Johnston Road.

There will be no accommodation for the firemen on the premises, but they will continue to be housed in the old No. 2 Police Station nearby, while the hose tower, which is now in the compound of the new No. 2 Police Station, will be temporarily erected there.

It is expected that, as soon as an appropriation to cover the cost can be secured, a permanent fire station for this district will be erected further east, probably in the immediate vicinity of the police station at Bay View. The new building will be a relatively large and quite modern structure, and will house both the Police Station and the Fire Brigade. So far no plans have been prepared for this building, and it is not expected that the project will be taken up for the next three or four years.

are by no means as powerless as we think. On all hands it is said that the individual to-day counts for nothing and can do nothing. He is crushed by systems, displaced by machines, and exploited by combines. In economics and politics alike, the game is played behind closed doors and the only rule seems to be that the common man must always lose.

"That is all very true, but it is not the whole truth. Very seldom has there been a generation so rich as our own in forceful, energetic personalities. These men of whom I have been speaking, they are individuals, many of them with little or nothing behind them, and we should think of them, not as half-gods whom we are to worship, but as men like ourselves who prove to us that the individual is still the centre of power.

Put Superman Aside. "I believe that we should resolutely put aside this longing for a superman and go boldly forward in the path of democracy. The times in which we live are not an appeal for a dictator who will jockey us all into happiness and prosperity, but for a few hundred thousand ordinary people who will seek a little more knowledge and develop a little more courage.

There is one article of faith which a civilisation simply cannot afford to lose—faith in the power of the individual to make the world as it is a little nearer to the world as it ought to be. We need a new morale, a conviction that the power of circumstances is not ultimate, that in such measure as we are prepared to grapple with it, we are its master and not its slaves.

"It would be very comforting to believe that it is the folly of kings and statesmen which has brought us where we are, but it is scarcely true. Each of us has contributed his quota of ignorance, indifference and hesitation to the result and it is yet to be seen whether there is any deliverance possible in the long run without individual acceptance of responsibility and individual courage."—(Applause).

MUNSANG COLLEGE PRIZE-DAY.

PERIOD OF FINANCIAL STRESS TIDED OVER

Munsang College, Kowloon City, held its annual prize-day yesterday, when the Headmaster (Mr. R. Huang) presented his report on the work of the School for the past year.

Particular reference was made to a period of financial stress which the Institution passed through, but a timely grant-in-aid from the Government, in recognition of the excellent work being carried out and the tireless efforts of Mr. Huang, has enabled it to carry on, and a bright future is predicted.

The Hon. Mr. S. W. T'ao, Chairman of the College Council, presided, the visitors including Mr. G. P. de Martin, Director of Education, Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, and others.

An enjoyable concert given by the pupils was much enjoyed. Mr. Huang then read his report on the work of the School for the past year.

Principal Congratulated.

The Hon. Mr. S. W. T'ao said: It gives me great pleasure to come here to-day and distribute the prizes. On the programme I see that I am expected to make a speech after the distribution of prizes. But after listening to the most interesting report of the Headmaster I feel that I have very little to say except to offer my hearty congratulations to the Headmaster and his staff for completing another year's work with success.

At the beginning of last year the school was in a very critical position on account of lack of funds. Any Head Master with less courage and faith than Mr. Huang would have abandoned his ship and left a few hundred students stranded. But not so with Mr. Huang. He stuck to his wheel and weathered the storm of the financial sea, and with the timely assistance from the Government, saved her from wrecking.

Hitherto the work of the Munsang College has been carried on privately and unassumingly and little is known to the Educational Authorities. Since the application for help, the Government has looked into the working of the school and found it worthy of support. The school is not only receiving financial assistance from the Government but also sound advice from the Education Department on educational matters.

Under these auspicious circumstances I feel sure that the school will attain further successes and greater achievements. Ladies and gentlemen, I wish the College every success. (Applause).

MAN HUNTERY

turning a bright barreled object upon himself.

"Stop it, you fool! Stop it!" It was her own voice but it sounded hoarse and strange. Ben lay grotesquely like a fallen marionette. Simon came running and lifted his employer.

"It's nothing. He only got me in the arm," Heath muttered. "I'll be all right." They helped him to the car. Oddly enough there were no spectators for this little drama. The park at this hour at this particular place was deserted.

"Who is the fool?" Heath demanded in a low, angry voice.

"I know him," Susan murmured. "I saw him for an instant under the light. It's a boy I used to see."

Heath glanced at her shrewdly. He knitted his brows for a moment, debating. Then he ordered Simon sharply, "Better drag the young idiot in here. We must hush this up at all costs."

Susan tried to protest. Calmly Heath ordered her to get into the front seat beside the chauffeur. His left arm hanging at his side, he managed to help Simon drag the limp figure of the boy into the car.

"Drive to Dr. Blake's in Bank street," he told Simon fiercely. "The young fool's still alive, thank Heaven, although he doesn't deserve to be."

Susan put throbbing hands to her temples. The horror of the situation overwhelmed her. Surely she would wake, and find she had been dreaming.

Dr. Blake's home had a driveway and a service door opening directly upon that. No one molested them or questioned them as they lifted the unconscious figure and carried it inside.

"You wait here," Heath told Susan. "I don't want you mixed up in this." He looked older, sterner.

"Your arm?" she faltered. Oh, she had not meant to bring trouble to him!

"It's all right. Blake will attend to it in a few minutes. Don't worry. It's lucky this happened so near his office. I've known him for years."

Simon came out, waiting orders. Heath told him, "You're to take Miss Carey home and come back for me."

Susan asked timidly, "You'll telephone me later and let me know what happens?"

"Of course." She had never liked him as much as she did at that moment. She leaned toward him and said, softly and hurriedly, "This boy hasn't any claim on me."

Heath's face lighted, but he said rather brusquely, "You didn't need to tell me. I knew it." "Will he live?" asked Susan, fearfully.

Heath shrugged. "Blake says he doesn't know." (To be Continued)

AN UNPUBLISHED PACT SIGNED AT LAUSANNE

HOSPITAL DRAMA

DAUGHTER

INTERVENTION

(Reuter's Special Service).

London, July 13.
The grim story of a remarkable shooting incident in a London hospital yesterday is prominently featured in the newspapers this morning.

The father of a girl of twenty-one, who was a patient in the hospital, murdered the girl and then attempted suicide.

The shooting appears to have been premeditated. The man was visiting his daughter when he suddenly drew a revolver.

A matron, standing nearby, made an heroic attempt to avert the tragedy. She threw herself between the girl and her father and received the first bullet fired. Fortunately, it merely struck her wrist.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

She was then roughly thrown aside by the father, who must have been temporarily insane, and who opened fire upon the helpless girl, shooting her dead.

The revolver was then turned upon himself and he gravely wounded himself, doctors believing that he cannot recover.

HARBIN CUSTOMS SEIZURE

MR. PRETTEJOHN NOW
ORDERED OUT

Harbin, July 12.
The Manchukuo authorities continue to adopt a high-handed attitude on the Customs issue.

The latest development is the seizure by the authorities of all the safes and keys and contents of the Customs building here.

They have also ordered the Commissioner, Mr. Prettejohn, and his staff to evacuate the Customs living quarters.—Reuter.

SINO-SOVIET RELATIONS

C. T. WANG REPORTED
MOSCOW-BOUND

Shanghai, July 13.
According to the China Press, Dr. C. T. Wang, who until some months ago was China's Foreign Minister, has been chosen by the National Government as the Chinese plenipotentiary delegate to proceed to Moscow to conduct negotiations for the resumption of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

The paper says that the offer was made to Dr. C. T. Wang some ago by Mr. Wang Ching-wei and that Dr. C. T. Wang has now signified his intention of accepting.—Reuter.

SILVER RATHER EASIER

UNCHANGED

The Hongkong dollar remains unchanged at 1s 3/4 to-day, despite the fact that silver has declined both in London and New York. The local market is dormant, with a slightly easier undertone.

In London, silver declined 1/16th. There was no special feature, and the market was quietly steady. After the official fixing, the market was rather dull, with America inclined to sell.

New York reports a decline of 1/8th in silver prices, on a dull market.

PRIME MINISTER GIVES
AN EXPLANATION

London, July 12.
THE DRAMATIC REVELATION THAT ACTUAL DOCUMENTS WERE SIGNED AT LAUSANNE BETWEEN BRITAIN, FRANCE AND ITALY, EMBODYING THE SO-CALLED GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT, CONCERNING WHICH THERE HAS BEEN MUCH SPECULATION IN LONDON AND SOME SIGNS OF ALARM IN CERTAIN CIRCLES IN THE UNITED STATES, WAS MADE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TO-NIGHT.

The suggestion that this "secret agreement" is tantamount to an ultimatum to America was firmly and clearly dispelled by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, but there was a feeling in the House that the document should be published. Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Churchill both urged publication. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald said he did not object, but as the gist of the documents had already been published, there was no occasion to publish them.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain declared that Britain could not publish them without the consent of France and Italy. Mr. Lansbury also thought it better to publish. Nothing should be permitted to stand which might lead to suggestions that the Governments had something to hide. Sir John Simon later announced that he had cabled to Paris and Rome for consent to publish.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald hinted that complete success of Lausanne might depend on the Disarmament Conference. Sir John Simon, dealing with this point, paralleled the Lausanne atmosphere of "Something Must Be Done" with Geneva's "Something Ought to Be Done," and expressed the hope that the former watchwords would prevail at Geneva this week.

PREMIER'S ASSURANCE TO U.S.A.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, who was greeted with a storm of cheering when he rose to make his promised statement on the meaning of the Lausanne agreement, exhaustively reviewed the reparations and war debts problems from all angles.

While reparations lasted, he declared, there could be no complete economic recovery for the world.

The results of the Lausanne Conference could, he believed, lead to a settlement of the reparations problem, but until Germany recovered as a world factor there could be no recovery for us.

ISOLATION.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald went on to deal with the difficulties confronting the world in achieving a solution of inter-governmental obligations. Under the system which they hoped to bring to an end, Germany paid reparations to the European Allies and the Allies paid war debts to the United States.

Each of those three groups quite properly refused to treat its contractual obligations so as to mix itself up with the position of any of the others.

The German Chancellor, Herr Von Papen declined throughout to admit that Allies war debts to America were any affair of his, while Washington said it could not consider debts from

UNITED STATES SUSPICIOUS

Gentlemen's Agreement
Statement

Washington, July 12.
The United States is not bound in any way by any supposed Gentlemen's agreement, either expressly or by implication, declared Senator Borah this afternoon, quoting Mr. H. L. Stimson, the Secretary of State, in the Senate, with Mr. Stimson's authorisation.—Reuter.

REMARKABLE SCENE
AT BELFAST

(Reuter's Special Service).

Belfast, July 12.
Remarkable scenes were witnessed at Belfast to-day when a hundred thousand Orangemen gathered in a field just outside the city and proclaimed their loyalty to the King and their belief in the Empire and faith in the Protestant Church.

The occasion of the demonstration was the two hundred and forty-second anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

There was a five mile long procession from the city to the scene of the celebrations.

Representatives said: "You will get your agreement if you now excuse us all our debts." The British delegation had replied "You must wait and see." The British Government is not out to make any profit on anything it receives from reparations and war debts.

NO BLAME.

None has a right, he went on, to blame America for taking up her attitude. Had we all got together our work would have been simplified, but America felt she had to be consistent and I for one—although America has never uttered a pledge nor in any way indicated how far she is prepared to meet us—believe that there is no nation in the world more ready to lend a hand in straightening out the entanglements and trouble with which we are now surrounded than America and her people.

In view of the serious results likely to follow upon any suggestion that Europe had combined, simply to present an ultimatum to the United States, I wish to make it perfectly clear that all Lausanne did was to straighten out the internal difficulties of Europe and to agree on proposals which the nations there represented.—(Continued on Page 7.)

STORMY DEBATE IN THE DAIL

THE OATH BILL
RE-BUILT

LAND ANNUITY
DUTY LIST

Dublin, July 12.
After an extremely stormy debate in the Dail Eirann, the Senate's amendment to the Bill for the Abolition of the Oath of Allegiance, was rejected.

The voting gave the de Valera Government a majority of ten, 71 voting in favour of rejection and 61 against.

The Senate, it will be recalled, threw out Section Two of the Bill, its most essential part, providing for the deletion of that part of the Free State Constitution Act giving the Treaty of 1922 the force of law.

Other amendments were also passed by the Senate, altering the Bill beyond recognition. The other changes are also certain of rejection by the Dail.

SUSPENSION LIKELY.

After the Dail has restored the Bill to its original form, the Bill will be returned to the Senate, which will, most probably, refuse to accept it.

The Bill will then remain in suspense for a period of eighteen months unless Mr. de Valera decides upon some other course of action.

In the meantime, it is learned that the British Government are proceeding to action upon the basis of the Free State Special Duties Bill, which is designed to enable the collection of the land annuities, now being withheld by the Irish Government, by means of a duty upon Irish imports into Britain. The duties will cease to operate immediately the funds required to meet the obligation have been collected.

TREASURY ORDER.

A Treasury Order issued in London last night imposes a duty of twenty per cent. ad valorem on the following imports into Britain from the Irish Free State, as from Thursday next:

Live animals, for food.
Live animals, not for food.
Butter.
Eggs.
Cream.
Bacon.
Pork.
Poultry.
Game.
Other meat of all kinds.

The duties are, it will be seen, to be imposed upon every kind of Irish farm produce, the Free State's principal exports.—Reuter.

A COMPREHENSIVE
DISCUSSION

London, July 12.
The agenda for the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa has been issued.

It includes discussion of trade and tariffs policy, the extension to the whole Commonwealth of all Empire Preferences, and the extension of tariff advantages accorded to foreign countries to all the members of the Commonwealth.

The agenda also includes export bounties, and anti-dumping duties within the Commonwealth.

Discussion of commercial treaty policy includes the interpretation of the most-favoured nation clause.

The basis and means of inter-Imperial co-operation will be considered, including industrial policy, the various currencies and monetary standards within the Empire, and the feasibility and desirability of restoring and stabilising the general price level and the stabilising of exchanges.—Reuter.

SOVIET ADVANCE ON FRONTIER

OCCUPY MANCHURIA
NEUTRAL ZONE.

Harbin, July 13.
Chinese Eastern Railway circles state that information has been received telegraphically from Manchuria, on the Manchuria-Soviet border, disclosing that Soviet troops are advancing towards the frontiers and are now occupying the middle of the three-mile neutral zone established by the Habarovsk Protocol.

The report is denied by the Japanese Military Command, but nevertheless it is generally believed to be true.—Reuter.

FEAT

Hedley Verity, the Yorkshire left-handed slow bowler, achieved a phenomenal feat at Leeds yesterday, taking all ten Notts wickets in their second innings for 10 runs.

The Notts-Yorkshire match, won by the Tykes by ten wickets, was also notable for the fact that Yorkshire declared their first innings closed while still 71 runs in arrears of the Notts first innings total.

The move was attended by wonderful reversals. Notts were dismissed for 67 and Yorkshire then made 139 for 10 wicket.

Gloucester at last achieved another victory and Middlesex registered a sound victory. J. C. White took 15 wickets for 96 runs for Somerset. Numerous centuries were scored, and the details will be found on the Sports Page.

THE NOUIENS CASE

MR. LO WEN-KAN
RESIGNS

Nanking, July 13.
Mr. Lo Wen-kan last night tendered his resignation from the position of Minister of Justice.

It is believed that he has resigned because of certain aspects of the Noulens case.

This morning, Mr. Wang Ching-wei stated that Madame Sun Yat-sen and Mr. Tsai Yuan-pei would act as guarantors for Mr. and Mrs. Noulens if they were removed to hospital for treatment.

This is being done and Mr. Lo Wen-kan has concurred in the arrangement.

Mr. Wang Ching-wei said that there was no reason for Mr. Lo Wen-kan's resignation, which the Chinese Government have rejected.—Reuter.

NOTED ADMIRAL PASSES

AUSTRALIAN NAVY
"FATHER"

London, July 13.
The death is announced of Admiral Sir Reginald Henderson, G.C.B., the "father" of the Australian Navy, at the age of 85 years.

He entered the Navy in 1860, and served as second in command of the Inevincible at the bombardment of Alexandria and afterwards in command of an armoured train there.

He retired in 1911, in which year, at the invitation of the Commonwealth Government, he visited Australia and presented a report giving his advice with regard to the establishment of the Australian Navy.—Reuter.

NARROW ESCAPES OF EUROPEAN

OVER A 20-FOOT
EMBANKMENT

Remarkable escapes from serious injury were the good fortune of Mr. G. C. Stopani Thompson and a lady friend when a Hongkong Hotel car in which they were proceeding along the Island Road, at about midnight, went over an embankment.

Although the car toppled down a bank of more than 20 feet and struck a tree before reaching the bottom of a gully, Mr. Thompson and the lady were not injured beyond a few minor scratches.

The driver, Cheng Kam, was less fortunate, being injured in the back, but his condition is not regarded as serious.

It appears that the mishap occurred on an incline about a mile from Aberdeen. The car was proceeding towards Pokfulam, and was ascending the hill. The driver, it is understood, changed gear, causing, it is thought, the vehicle to swerve and shoot over the side of the road.

"ROLLY-POLLY"

The car turned over and over two or three times and crashed against a tree before its downward career was checked.

Police from Aberdeen Station, apprised of the occurrence, hastened to the spot expecting to discover the occupants seriously hurt, and were agreeably surprised when they discovered Mr. Thompson and the lady standing beside the wrecked car.

The driver, who had also been flung clear, was the only person injured to any extent, and he was promptly taken to the Government Civil Hospital.

MOTOR CARS IN COLLISION

LOCAL DOCTOR'S
ESCAPE

Dr. J. H. Montgomery, of the Matilda Hospital, was involved in a motor car collision yesterday, but escaped injuries.

About 6.15 p.m., he was returning to town intending to drive up to Wongsheehong Gap. Whilst rounding a bend, his car came into collision with another private car, owned by a Mr. Lee, of 25, Seymour Road, which had entered the bend from the opposite direction.

Dr. Montgomery's car appears to have escaped lightly from the collision, a smashed offside mudguard and headlight being all that was suffered. The extent of the damage suffered by the other car is not stated.

No-one was injured.

Stripping off their clothes, men, women and children of the Doukhobor religious cult in British Columbia recently staged a series of protest parades which wound up in the jail compound at Nelson, B.C. Pictures above show, left, the compound where cultists are living in tents pending trial; right, women of the colony in typical dress waiting at the barrier to talk to friends. The cult owns vast tracts of land, is wealthy in communal rights and objects to sending its children to dominion schools. They also are fighting tax assessments. Provincial police rounded up several hundred naked marchers during a series of parades.

MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Susan Carey is in love with Bob Dunbar, millionaire's son. Denise Ackroyd, society girl, tries to break up the attachment and succeeds at a house party which she gives. Ernest Heath, Susan's employer, happens to be passing when Susan and Bob quarrel and takes her home. His wife threatens to sue for alienation of his affections but changes her mind when Jack Waring, Heath's assistant, produces an incriminating letter. Ray Flannery, stenographer, in the next office, confides to Susan her distress on hearing that "Sissy" Webb has married another girl. Ben and Susan quarrel on Christmas eve over some flowers Heath sent her. Waring, meeting Denise, learns of her interference in Susan's affairs. Heath asks Susan to be his wife when his divorce becomes final. She hesitates. Her aunt undergoes a serious operation and Susan decides to marry him for the sake of security.

CHAPTER XXXIV

Susan's engagement had not been announced since neither she nor Heath desired the publicity but it was a definite engagement just the same. Aunt Jessie, home from the hospital, had been told of it. She had met Ernest Heath and had grudgingly liked him although she had grumbled at the idea of their marriage.

"I never thought to see you marry a divorced man," she mourned. "Especially someone so much older. Not that he isn't a fine man. Anyone with half an eye can see that. It just don't seem right."

The starched nurse Heath had insisted upon providing for the convalescent bustled into the room then and Aunt Jessie fell silent. The plan was that on the following day Aunt Jessie was to go to Florida in the nurse's charge.

The marriage would take place the following month.

"It don't seem right," Aunt Jessie went on when the nurse had disappeared, "to accept so much from a perfect stranger."

"He's not a perfect stranger," Susan said, laughing, and then wondered if she had really spoken the truth. It had been strange and difficult for her to call her employer Ernest. She had finally managed it as she had learned also to like and admire the slim, quiet, aristocratic man whom she had promised to marry. There was no time for regret. The day had been cast. Heath had thought it unsuitable for her to continue working in the office so she was at home.

"Time for your nap," she reminded the invalid.

Aunt Jessie grumbled. "I declare I never expected to see the day when I'd sleep in the middle of the afternoon. I call it shiftless."

"You're a humbug. You really like it," Susan told her, leaving to get her wraps. Heath was calling to take her for a drive.

He looked at the girl with some dissatisfaction as she got into the car.

"What on earth's the matter?" Susan asked.

"Nothing, except that I wish you'd let me give you that fur coat now instead of waiting until later," the man remarked.

Susan shook her head. On this point she was stubborn. She would take anything for Aunt Jessie but nothing for herself until she was rightfully Heath's wife.

"I thought we'd go out to that little Spanish place for tea," he said.

"That would be nice. I'd like that," she assured him. The luxury and care with which he surrounded her was almost suffocating. Was she warm enough? Why had she worn those thin shoes? Susan appreciated the solicitude, at the same time finding it a little trying. Young men were not like this she reminded herself. Young men were careless and selfish and arrogant.

"What are you thinking of? You look as if you were miles away," she turned to smile at him. "Only of how good you are to me."

There! She had pleased him and with so little. She was almost ashamed. It was so easy to make him happy. She divined something of his former loneliness.

The drive was longer than Susan had expected and it was dark when at last they returned to the city. It had been a clear, cold, sunny day, and a faint light still lingered on the lake. On sudden impulse Susan said, "Let's walk along the lake wall."

She wanted quite unreasonably to escape from the warm, luxurious car and feel the east wind on her cheeks. Heath told Simon to wait for them at the turn of the road.

"It's lovely here, isn't it?" breathed the girl. She leaned against the parapet, looking down at the water.

"Not as much so as some of the places you and I are going to see soon," the man reminded her.

She shivered involuntarily. Instantly he was all solicitude. "You're cold. I knew you would be. We'd better go back to the car."

"No, no. It's not that," she protested. "It's only that I feel a little frightened sometimes. It has all worked out too smoothly. It seems as though something must be bound to happen."

"Nonsense." His reassurance was robust. "You're just fanciful, that's all."

"Maybe I am." But had it been fancy, Susan wondered, that had caused her to imagine the tall figure strolling past the house several nights when she had been saying goodbye to Heath looked strangely like Don? Somehow the idea had made her uneasy. She had refused to see Ben since Christmas eve when he had outrageously kissed her.

"What's that?" she asked fearfully, glancing over her shoulder. "Nothing at all. Just the wind in the branches."

"It sounded like someone running." She looked back along the wind swept esplanade. "Perhaps we had better go."

They began to walk briskly in the direction from which they had come. Susan flung another anxious glance over her shoulder. Her nerves were certainly in a bad state. She could have sworn she had seen the shadow of a figure behind that oak tree.

She heard the whine of something past her ear. Heath grasped her arm roughly and began to run. "What's the matter?" she panted, flying along beside him.

"Nothing, nothing! Only come along."

The footfalls behind them were no longer imaginary. They were real. That strange, whining sound came again and Susan recognized it for what it was—the zoom of a bullet! She felt her companion away against her.

"What is it?" she cried. "Some thing warm trickled inside her glove. 'You're hurt!'"

"It's nothing. Some maniac has turned sniper," Heath gasped. They could see the car only a few feet ahead. Heath stumbled and fell and Susan, through a roaring in her ears, heard a cry. She wheeled. The street light, glimmering, lighted the nightmare before her. There was Heath, unconscious at her feet. There was Ben, hatless beneath the trees, (Continued on Page 11.)

The first went to the Indians by a margin of 9-3. Averill scored a home run while the record resulted in the defeat of the Athletics by 12-7. Averill scored twice and Fox (Philadelphia) once.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

"At the Villa Rose," which is coming to the King's Theatre next Sunday, depicts an unusually conceived and executed mystery drama that will keep the audience on their toes right until the final denouement.

Madame d'Auray (Barbara Gott), the mistress of Villa Rose, is a kind-hearted and charming old lady, who had adopted Gelia Harland (Nora Baring) when the young girl's father had been sent to prison by M. Hannaud, the great French detective. Madame has two ruling passions, one a love of the occult, and another the delight of displaying upon her person as often as possible her priceless collection of jewels. Many people, including a gang of international crooks, covet an earring in her collection, the second earring being possessed by a millionaire, who also wishes to obtain its mate. By a peculiar set of circumstances, Gelia is forced by Madame into the role of a medium, and during one of her seances, the old lady is strangled. Suspicion immediately falls upon Gelia, who had disappeared during the seance. Hannaud, the great French detective, is called in, and how he, step by step, succeeds in unravelling the baffling mystery forms one of the finest set of sequences ever seen on the screen in Hongkong.

Capable direction of "At the Villa Rose," which was adopted by the A.E. W. Mason stage play of the same name by the Twickenham Film studio, is by that most famous of all English directors, Leslie Hiscott.

Difficult Casting Job.

Finding five pairs of children of different ages who bore a resemblance to each other, although at different periods of growth, was the difficult task in casting "Emma." Clarence Bessler's latest starring Marie Brown in filming "Emma," which is now on its final run at the Queen's Theatre. In scenes from the picture, photographs of the children are used. The family is seen in the process of growing. Therefore, resemblance to her striking. Richard Cromwell, Myrna Loy, Lella Bennett, Barbara Kent, Kathryn Crawford and George Meeker play the grown-up children. Jean Harlow plays the father.

"Dancers in the Dark"

A small, pug-nosed, cloud of curly blonde hair, intense, bright blue eyes and a ready smile, are the pleasing identifying characteristics of Miriam Hopkins. She never wears makeup off the screen. She spends most of her time in the water as she is a swimming or least a very leaves her head, none when not working on a picture. She loves dogs and has one when she adores. Although she has been on the stage seven years, she is frightened speechless by personal appearances. Her ambition is to become a director of motion pictures. When working on a picture, she chums with the scenarist, cutter, cameramen and director, learning from each the tricks of their trade, the terms they use and the reasons for all steps taken. Her principal avocation is writing short stories. She has written at least a half dozen. One was a novelette of 25,000 words, but she has none of them published as yet. Although she was born in the South, she thinks it very silly to attach so much importance to southern hospitality and many of the other traditions upheld by most Southerners. She has the happy faculty of adjusting herself to whatever the future has in store for her. In spite of this, you get the impression that if she really made up her mind to do something, there would be no way to accomplish it. She lives very simply in her beach home, having only one servant, a very fine French maid, and her dog. Usually she has a swim before dinner on her return from the studio and her favourite pastime is chatting friends on the telephone in New York.

Miss Hopkins has been a very busy girl since she went to Hollywood, following the filming of "The Smiling Lieutenant" at the Paramount New York studio. After completing a long stretch of exacting work in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," she started in with "Dancers in the Dark," which is the King's Theatre's feature to-day. In this picture Miss Hopkins co-stars with Jack O'Neil, William Collier, Jr., and Eugene Pallette.

as it removes Bacterial-Mouth

WHEN your smile reveals ugly, stained, decayed teeth and unhealthy gums, you have Bacterial-Mouth. An incurable condition caused by germs in the mouth that attack teeth and gums. Koly nos whitens teeth so quickly and firms gums so effectively because it kills the germs that cause this trouble.

Use the famous Koly nos Dry-Brush Technique for 3 days—a half-inch of Koly nos on a dry brush, morning and night. Then look at your teeth—fully 3 shades whiter. Koly nos is unique in action. It multiplies 25 times when it enters the mouth and becomes a surgical, antiseptic foam which reaches every pit and crevice. Germs that cause Bacterial-Mouth are killed. They vanish and the entire mouth is purified.

If you want teeth gleaming white and sound, and gums firm and healthy—use Koly nos.

THE PROSPECTS FOR OTTAWA

To-day, the British delegation to the Ottawa Conference departs from England. The gathering which it is to attend is one in which great hopes are ventred.

It can, in fact, be stated that no Imperial Conference yet held is comparable to this Ottawa meeting, at which a tremendous effort will be made to devise schemes not only in the interest of Empire trade but also covering problems affecting the whole world. As Mr. Ramsay MacDonald stated in the course of his Empire Day broadcast speech, the British Government has been engaged for months past in working out with painstaking care a precise programme—lists of duties, their purposes, and how and where they can be modified. In that task it has taken into consultation representatives of the great industries, both from employers' federations and trade unions. The delegation therefore leave England having studied, with a thoroughness never before devoted to the subjects, every aspect of the problem of Imperial Preference as a means of promoting Imperial unity, and increasing the volume of Empire trade and labour.

There has been an idea prevalent in some quarters that the Ottawa Conference is likely to be a self-centred movement, directed against other nations than those within the British Commonwealth. That is not so. Its object, as the British Prime Minister has pointed out, is to lay the foundations of an economic policy which will be mutually helpful to members of the Commonwealth, but which will not be paralysing to general world commerce. By concentrating on the task of creating freer trade conditions over a vast area of the world, the Ottawa

Conference hopes to open up the way to better contacts with all nations. Mr. Kuncelman recently put the position in a nutshell when he declared that "we are prepared to encourage trade with any country, provided they give us a chance. It is because the Dominions are giving us a greater chance than any other countries that our hearts are open to them. Our legislation is devised in their interest, and we shall go to the Conference at Ottawa determined to do everything we can to dovetail those interests for the future." It must be remembered in this connexion that one-third of Britain's population is directly concerned in overseas trade, and it is therefore essential that that trade shall be maintained. Tariff barriers prevent British goods and services being transferred, and they add materially to international difficulties. On the other hand, these problems are not encountered to nearly the same extent when it comes to Britain's contact with the Dominions. So the British delegation will go to Ottawa determined to take a broad view, with the predominant aim of helping all who are prepared to become equal partners in the great Empire. Canada has already given an indication of its good faith in the lengthy list of duty-free Empire products. We have no doubt that the Mother Country and the other Dominions will be found equally responsive.

The Duke of Connaught recently gave voice to a fact when he asserted that in the past the various parts of the Empire have taken too narrow a view of their special interests. The Ottawa Conference provides the means of discovering methods by which each unit can promote the prosperity of the whole, stop the separatist drift, and set a course towards a new unity based on free co-operation. The opportunity is unprecedented. That it will be freely seized there can be no two opinions. Indeed, it is not too much to say that Ottawa may well mark the beginning of a great new era, of benefit alike to the Empire and the world at large.

Why Worry?

Of all the habits which tend to throw one's mind out of gear, worry is by far the most common. Worries, some people think, are inevitable; to be told not to worry is a most unhelpful piece of advice. This mental habit, however, is an unnecessary way of meeting difficulties. It is the difficulties, and the threats of unhappiness if they are not surmounted, which are inevitable. Worry consists in a passive, seared contemplation of this associated possibility of unhappiness. People with this temperament direct their thoughts more to the consequences of failure than to a solution of the difficulty itself. Probably they set too much store by their own personal happiness; probably they are not good at solving problems; but most common of all, the difficulty is not soluble because it has not yet arisen. The remedy for worry then is fairly obvious; allow yourself to think only of those problems of which all the circumstances are clearly known. These, it will be granted, are the problems of the immediate present. There is great wisdom in the late Sir William Osler's advice, "Live for the day—live neither in the past nor in the future, but let each day's work absorb your entire energies." Most of the day's difficulties are so easily soluble. Think of the effort required to foretell the solution six months ago—and the worry involved! We can see to-day's problems, for exactly what they are, whereas those of to-morrow are shrouded in mist. The fear of them is largely the fear of the unknown. Happiness will always escape those who are constantly thinking of the future with fear and foreboding. But if your sole object is to do the day's work—and play—as well as you are able, it is almost impossible to make this mistake. Few people would fail to achieve such an ambition. In fact, the only failure in life would be those with no work to do. This remedy for worry does not preclude a wise forethought. Nel-

DAY BY DAY

NOT WEALTH, BUT ONLY HEROIC MEN AND NOBLE WOMEN CAN MAKE A NATION GREAT, BRAVE AND STRONG.

The French Community at Canton will celebrate July 14th by giving a reception at the Canton Club, Shamoen, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Among the passengers for Hongkong who arrived on the President Hoover on Monday was Mrs. Charles L. Wakefield, of Dallas, Texas, who will visit her daughter, Mrs. Thomas C. Barringer, of 24, Peak Mansions.

We are informed by Messrs. Lane, Crawford that the whole of their bakery, confectionery and catering department staff, from the manager down to the lowest paid coolie, are being inoculated as a precaution against cholera.

The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation advertise that an Interim Dividend of 23 per share, subject to deduction of Income Tax, has been declared for the half year ending June 30, 1932, payable on and after Monday, August 8.

Six men were charged before the Hon. Comdr. Hale, at the Marine Court this morning, with having boarded the s.s. Bremerhaven without permission. Five of them were fined $50 or six weeks' imprisonment each, while the third was remanded until to-morrow in order that a previous conviction may be proved against them.

Our Canton correspondent reports that Mr. Jerrold, a member of the Federated Malay States Police, has recovered from cholera. He will shortly be leaving for Hongkong with a view to obtaining permission to take a holiday in Japan, before resuming his duties in Canton. The other members of the Malay Police have now been permitted to leave Shamoen and return to Tungshan, since the epidemic seems to be now dying out. These young men have been sent to Canton to study Cantonese.

son is said to have had plans ready for almost any eventuality which might occur. To evolve such plans is part of the day's work. To live through the difficulties as if they were present, experiencing already the dread of failure, is not forethought, but mere pessimistic day-dreaming. When ambition is limited to what can be accomplished to-day, this course of modern life has little chance.

WHERE IS MODERNISM LEADING US?

I HAVE been reading over again correspondence published recently on religion, and I am going to ask and attempt to answer the question, Where is modern thought leading us? It challenges the entire groundwork of our Orthodox faith; it cries aloud for the immediate abandonment of certain non-essential dogmas.

After studying this correspondence I think most unprejudiced minds would admit that there is enough evidence here to show that our older interpretation of Christianity and the Bible—

Is bolstered up with relics of Pagan superstitions.

Is based upon inadequate historical evidence.

Is full of contradictions.

Is contrary to Science.

Our increasing knowledge shows us that the myths, miracles, and mysteries of older Pagan religions are so similar to those of Christianity that the similarity cannot be accounted for by the word "coincidence." The only answer which the champions of Orthodoxy gave to this contention was that these "Pagan" illustrations prove nothing. But, surely, they prove exactly what they are intended to prove—that there is a striking similarity between the mysteries of Christianity and those of old Pagan religions.

Such an author as J. B. Hannay tells us that throughout the Old and the New World, in the legends of every religion, there are hundreds of Gods, or Sons of God, who came down to earth to teach and save mankind. He gives us a formidable list of 26 Pagan Saviours who were born of virgin mothers to save mankind. These legends, in many respects, bear striking resemblance to the stories told about Jesus.

Students of Mithraism, which was Christianity's most powerful rival for hundreds of years, are convinced that Christianity absorbed many of its doctrines and ceremonies, even its phraseology.

"Mithra's" resurrection took place from a rock tomb. The Pagans had a sacred banquet of seven. Dionysos turned water into wine. Poseidon walked on water. Dionysos also rode on two asses. Aesculapian raised the dead, and gave sight to the blind. Horos was born in a stable." One of the Mithraic rites was a sacramental Eucharist in which the elements used were bread and water. It was not until the second century of Christianity that the celebration of the Last Supper became a sacrament, and wine was substituted for water.

The recent study of ancient sun and sex worship shows conclusively that these forms of Paganism became welded together, and that every religion in the world has been influenced by these beliefs, up to the present day.

The historical evidence at our disposal is sufficient to prove that Jesus was a real historical character. Who was opposed to the hypocrisy and outward show of the Orthodoxy of His day and Who taught a doctrine of loving kindness. But we have no historical evidence at all for believing in His virgin birth, His bodily resurrection, and many of the Pagan beliefs which have grown up around His person. As Dean Inge says, "the philosophers of every age have used His name as a peg upon which to hang their views of the universe. Christ taught no dogmas, creeds, ceremonies or sacraments. There was no 'Christian' in Galilee till there were Christians in every part of the Roman Empire.

"The sites associated with the life of Christ were unknown till the fourth century, when they were 'discovered' at the command of the pious Empress Helena, the mother of the murdered Constantine."

The "Encyclopaedia Biblica" was compiled by the most learned scholars of the English Church. In speaking of parts of the Old Testament they say—"To us the greatest part of the material is not in any proper sense historical at all." In reference to Christ's resurrection they say—"It is undeniable that the Church was founded, not directly upon the fact of the Resurrection of Jesus, but upon the belief in His Resurrection; and this faith worked with equal power whether the Resurrection was an actual fact or not!" The Rev. Canon O. C. Quick, M.A., says—"The veil of the awful mystery up to which St. Mark's unfinished gospel leads us is not likely to be lifted very much further by all the researches of the critics."

Modern thought is quite clear about the fact that for many old beliefs there is simply no historical evidence of all. St. Matthew's story in chapter XXVII. verses 51-53, that there was an earthquake, the graves opened and the bodies of the saints which slept arose, "And came out of the graves, after His Resurrection and went into the holy city, and appeared to many," is not corroborated by a single historian, nor by the other Gospels. A stupendous happening of this kind could not have been overlooked in this way.

If, then, the Bible is fallible, it is surely only by using our God-given gift of reason that we can discover what spiritual truth, if any, it has to offer us.

Biblical Contradictions.

Orthodox believers refuse to admit that the Bible is full of contradictions. In St. Matthew we are given to understand that it was so clearly known that Jesus had claimed that He would rise again after three days that, after His death, the Pharisees and chief priests went to Pilate saying—"Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while He was yet alive, After three days I will rise again." See also St. Mark chapter VIII. verses 31-32, and St. Matthew chapter XVI. verses 21-22. Yet in chapter XX St. John is telling us about Mary Magdalene running to tell Simon Peter and the other disciples whom Jesus loved, about His resurrection and at verse 9, he says—"For as yet they knew not the Scriptures that He must rise again, from the dead." I ask in all sincerity of heart and mind what does it all mean?

Again, turn to Mark chapter X verses 29-30. The Gospels, which were written generations after Christ's death, are mentioned in His life time. His followers did not receive the promises, now in this time; while it seems as though a reader has been at work on the passage to spiritualise the human promise by adding "with persecution," also including the spiritualised promise of "eternal life." It would be easy to multiply examples of this kind, but these two will suffice.

Whatever view we take of the Bible account of creation; whether or not the word "day" means "an indefinite period of time," the fact is clear that until scientific knowledge came men had narrow, childish views about the stupendous mystery of creation. Without the wider, nobler scientific outlook on life, with its growing knowledge of the vastness of the heavenly firmament, men would never have altered their cramped, narrow ideas about the universe.

The stories of Adam and Eve, the Virgin birth, the fall of man, the bodily resurrection the doctrine of hell and eternal punishment, etc., which were all "essentials" of the old religion, are now admitted to be non-essential by the most serious-minded and intelligent of our Protestant ministers. By this they mean that we must open our eyes to the fact that Christianity is tainted with Pagan superstition.

Modernism believes in the evolutionary theory of religions, just as it believes in the evolution of our laws and customs (our bodies and our minds). It is busily engaged in clearing away the dead wood from the growing tree of religion. It shows us the Bible and the whole history of mankind in a new light. Creeds, ceremonies, sacraments, and symbols are merely the trappings of religion.

Real religion is the law of loving kindness, which will eventually build heaven upon earth.

We squabble and fight about the Divinity of Christ, because we have not yet realised that what He tried to teach us was the Divinity of Humanity. We are all sons and daughters of God. When we come to believe this there will be no need for any child to be "born in sin," because all children will be conceived of the spirit as well as of the body. We can never hope to build heaven upon earth till we believe in the divinity of humanity. INQUIRER.

THE LAUSANNE AGREEMENT

sented believed to be essential".

They had not agreed to merely another scaling down in reparations.

Britain wanted a cancellation all round of reparations.

FINANCIAL PLAN.

As to the financial plan, three milliards of Reich-marks were to be paid to the Bank of International Settlements by the German Government to be kept in trust-ship. After many arguments, they settled on a three years' complete moratorium and devised a means whereby the Bank of International Settlements should themselves decide when the bonds were to be put on the market.

By ending reparations, industry had been given a chance of recovery.

"You never received a reparations payment yet, he said, but you paid more away for it than you got. The shrinkage in two years in the exports of the four chief trading nations is ten times as great as the maximum annuity due last year."

SECOND PHASE.

Preparatory work for the second phase of the conference had already been begun by the League of Nations. The United States had expressed willingness to attend a World Economic Conference. He, himself, was not in favour of holding it at Geneva.

Concluding the Premier said that Europe had still to dissipate the surviving atmosphere of the war. Germany must be brought back into ordinary international relationship. He was glad to say that Lausanne brought Britain and France nearer, France nearer to Germany and France and Germany nearer to Britain. They must try and get the difficulties removed by applying increasingly the spirit of the League Covenant.

The British Government would continue its good offices for peace. The work had only begun. Disarmament opened up new ways and they might be very broad ways.

CHANCELLOR'S VIEW.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared that all the Lausanne Conference Powers, having followed the advice of the United States in harmonising their differences, believed that the United States would give ready and willing co-operation at the proper moment.

If cancellation all round was found to be impossible, "we must wait and see what the United States proposed as an alternative before we decided what to propose to the Allies."

OPPOSITION WANT CLEAN SLATE.

Mr. George Lansbury, leader of the Opposition, and Mr. Lloyd George supported the policy of the clean slate.

Mr. Lloyd George declared: "We should have wiped the slate clean and then asked the United States what she was prepared to do."

"If America insisted," he said, "then Britain should say, very well, we will pay."

This attitude was held by Mr. Neville Chamberlain to be quite unreasonable.

Sir John Simon later announced that he had telegraphed to France and Italy for consent to publish the Lausanne document.

DEBATE ENDS.

The largest and most important result of the Conference, he declared, was the enormous psychological change in the peoples of Europe.

Dealing with disarmament, Sir John Simon urged the House not to treat the British counter-proposals to the Hoover Scheme as trumpery and ill-conceived. He added that nothing was more vital to the cause of disarmament than the effective stopping of the abominable practice of indiscriminate air bombing.

The debate concluded and the Consolidated Fund Bill which was the subject matter of the whole debate was given a third reading.

THE AMERICAN ANGLE

NOTHING EXPECTED AT THIS TIME.

It seems highly improbable that any direct approach will be made to the United States by Britain or any other of her debtors in the immediate future.

The war debts tangle will probably be allowed to lie until the World Economic Conference which the United States proposes to attend, in November next. The whole issue will then be thrashed out in the light of the new situations created by the result of the Presidential Election. Meanwhile, America is "ready to hear appeals of the European

MORE WANCHAI ROWDYISM

POLICE MAKE EIGHT ARRESTS

Rowdiness outside the Wanchai Police Station does not seem to have abated following the recent convictions of a gang arrested for shouting in Gloucester Road and creating a general nuisance to the officers at the Station and residents in the vicinity.

Last night a further demonstration was staged in Gloucester Road, outside the station, when a crowd of Chinese gathered on the new Praya and created a disturbance.

A party of police from the Station dispersed the gathering after eight of their number had been arrested and charged. They were all brought before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning on charges of disorderly conduct.

All defendants pleaded not guilty, remarking that they were arrested as they were passing the station.

His Worship adjourned the hearing until to-morrow morning, the defendants being allowed $30 bail each.

SMALL FIRE AT WANCHAI

MAN & WOMAN SENT TO HOSPITAL

A piece of charcoal dropping into a tin of floor polish caused a small conflagration shortly after one o'clock yesterday afternoon in the kitchen of No. 50, Hennessy Road, which, with the top floor of the adjoining house, No. 48, was occupied by the Health Service and Intelligence Bureau.

In an endeavour to put out the fire, two employees, a man and a woman, received burns, but although sent to hospital their condition is not regarded as serious.

The combined efforts of the inmates finally resulted in the fire being extinguished, and no material damage was caused.

Powers for reduction of debts, without making any promises of revision."

HOOVER ATTITUDE.

President Hoover has stated that he holds to the view in his special message to Congress asking ratification of the one-year moratorium.

"I wish to take this occasion also to frankly state my views upon our relations to German reparations and the debts owed us by the allied governments of Europe. Our government has not been a party to, or exerted any voice in determination of, reparations obligations. We purposely did not participate in either general reparations or the division of colonies or property."

EUROPEAN PROBLEM.

"The repayment of debts due to us from the Allies for the advances for war and reconstruction were settled upon a basis not contingent upon German reparations or related thereto. Therefore reparations is necessarily wholly a European problem with which we have no relation."

"I do not approve in any remote sense of the cancellation of the debts owed to us. World confidence would not be enhanced by such action. None of our debtor nations has ever suggested it. But as the basis of the settlement of these debts was the capacity under normal conditions of the debtor to pay, we should be consistent with our own policies and principles if we take into account the abnormal situation now existing in the world."

"I am sure the American people have no desire to attempt to extract any sum beyond the capacity of any debtor to pay, and it is our view that broad vision requires that our government should recognize the situation as it exists."

AMOUNTS OF DEBTS.

The status of the foreign debts owed to the United States as on June 30, 1931, was:

Austria	$24,040,000
Belgium	404,730,000
Czechoslovakia	170,071,000
Estonia	13,830,000
Finland	8,650,000
France	3,865,000,000
Great Britain	4,426,000,000
Greece	31,700,000
Hungary	1,920,000
Italy	2,017,000,000
Latvia	5,775,000
Lithuania	6,235,000
Poland	178,560,000
Rumania	64,561,000
Yugoslavia	61,860,000

The foregoing sums represent the debts as funded by individual agreements after interest and principal had been scaled down by the United States.

Against these obligations, since the war, there has been paid a total of $443,311,000 in principal sums and $1,281,373,000 as interest, by far the largest sums in each instance by Great Britain.

BRITAIN'S NEW MOTOR LINER

GEORGIC FINISHES HER TRIALS

SMOKE-ROOM IN A DUMMY FUNNEL

The new White Star motor liner Georgic tied up at the conclusion of her trials amid the cheers of large crowds of Liverpool people, who are always pleased to see in addition to the shipping services on which their livelihood depends.

The Georgic is to enter the regular New York service as a cabin ship, and made her maiden voyage on June 25.

The new ship is a sister to the Britannic and is the largest motor-ship in British service. She has a gross tonnage of 27,000, is 680 feet long, and has accommodation for 1,532 passengers in three classes. She has been designed for comfort and economy and will not make Atlantic crossings in record times. Her speed is 18 knots.

After attending the trials of the Georgic and examining her from stem to stern, one is left wondering how it has been possible to incorporate so many spacious public rooms and at the same time so much deck space.

Faith in the Future.

An important innovation is the treatment of the forward funnel—actually a dummy—which is made to house a smoke-room for the engineers with a wireless room above. In the smoke-room are 15 easy chairs, two settees, and four tables.

A talk-film cinema, a swimming pool, a gymnasium, playrooms for children, passenger lifts, and shops are only a few of the special features of this ship.

The decoration is "non-period" throughout and is mostly of the quietest modern type. Rare woods have been used for panelling, and there are striking pictures carried out in wood inlay.

At a dinner on board, Mr. A. B. Cauty, director and general manager of the White Star, urged revision of the heavy visa charge for American visitors to Britain.

In a reference to the general trade depression he described the Georgic as the "symbol of our faith in the future."

General Sir Arthur Maxwell complained of subsidised foreign competition and urged that a condition of any concession to Germany in regard to her debts should be that her Government subsidy to shipping ceased at once.

CARELESS BLASTING OPERATIONS

CONTRACTORS FINED FOR OFFENCE

A fine of $100 was imposed on the Hoi Yuen building contractors who appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning on a summons accusing them of failing to take proper precautions during blasting operations at Tsai Tse Mui. A representative of the firm admitted the summons.

Inspector G. A. Stimson told his Worship that the firm had a quarry on the new part of the road going east just before the Police Station. During blasting operations on June 27, a workman was struck by a piece of stone and had to be taken to hospital. The man had been standing about 110 or 120 feet away from the charge.

THE DOGS' HOME.

The following is the record of the Dogs' Home for the month of June. Admitted 11 dogs, as follows:

Brought not required two, brought to be destroyed one, for custody and treatment 8.

One dog was sold; three returned to owners; and five were destroyed.

Of the five dogs destroyed, two were destroyed in the lethal chamber at the request of owners.

There are now ten dogs in the home, two of which are awaiting suitable homes. The others are for custody and treatment. All are in good health and condition.

HERRIOT MAJORITY.

AMENDMENT CHANGES INTO CONFIDENCE VOTE

Paris, July 12.

M. Herriot's first test of the Chamber opinion since his return from Lausanne gave him a majority of 360 to 179 on the Socialist amendment to the budget, relating to the Military Service Law.

M. Herriot opposed the amendment, and made the motion a vote of confidence.

The Chamber adopted the Budget by 385 to 201 after sitting throughout the night.—Reuter.

During the last few years people everywhere have shown more intelligent interest in the proper care of the teeth. Dental experts in public schools teach children the proper way to clean the teeth and gums, and dentists give their patients many helpful suggestions.

The beneficial results of such a widespread educational campaign are already beginning to appear. More and more people are brushing their teeth regularly and thus avoiding the decay that often means toothache and loss of teeth, if not stopped in time.

Dentists know that any of the tooth brushes and tooth pastes on the market will clean the teeth fairly well and remove most of the food particles that cause decay. But there are certain things to watch for, in choosing brushes and pastes, if one is anxious to get the best results.

Some tooth pastes contain gritty particles, or strong cleaning materials, that quickly whiten discoloured teeth. The results naturally please the user and he is liable to feel that other tooth pastes, that do not work so quickly, are not as good. Usually this is a mistake. A tooth paste can easily be so strong or so harsh that it injures the tooth enamel, and causes damage that cannot be repaired. There are many mild and safe tooth pastes to choose from. One of the most popular is Listerine Tooth Paste, which sells at a lower price than most tooth pastes of equal quality.

Tooth brushes, too, vary widely in their cleaning powers. Almost all tooth brushes will do a first-class job on the front teeth, that are easy to reach, but only a brush that is specially designed can reach around and between the back teeth where most of the trouble starts. For many years prophylactic tooth brushes have enjoyed steady sales because their design insures unusually thorough cleaning.

Anyone who will take the trouble to use a safe tooth paste on the right type of brush twice a day, and see a dentist twice a year, can have beautiful teeth and healthy gums. This simple health exercise prevents many unpleasant and unnecessary visits to the dentist, and helps guard general health as well.

In attempting to cross the road in front of an approaching hire car in Queen's Road East, near Antung Street yesterday, a girl Chan Lam-ling, aged 12, was knocked down by the car but was not seriously injured. She was taken to hospital.

A debt is said to have brought about a fight between two men, Chan Kat, a cobbler, and Wong Yau, of no kind, a cobbler, in Yau-mai yesterday. When the fight was over, one man was sent to hospital with an injury to his abdomen and the other with a head wound. Both men are recovering.

Veteran Takes 15
Wickets

The manner in which Yorkshire beat Nottingham stands out as an illuminating example of the value of astute captaincy. Notts batted first and compiled 234, but the wicket was obviously none too good and was becoming worse as the game progressed. Acting on this, the Yorkshire skipper actually brought his side's first innings to a close when the score board registered 163 for 9 wickets, this leaving the "Tykes" 71 behind on the first innings. Verity, however, came along to back up the bold move, and on his own dismissed Notts a second time for 67 runs. Yorkshire, set 139 to win, entered upon the task in a carefree manner, and hit the runs off without loss.

FIRST MATCH
SINCE 1926

NAVAL TEAM BEATS THE RESIDENTS

The first cricket match to take place at Nanking since 1926 was played on Saturday, July 2, between a team composed of the residents of Nanking (assisted by H.M.S. Gannet) and H.M.S. Bridgewater. It was played on the recreation ground, attached to the Admiralty, the ground being kindly lent for the occasion by Admiral Chen Shao-kuan. The match was twelve a side, and each side were allowed a maximum of 1 hr. 20 min. in which to get runs. This enabled the game to be played in the comparative cool of the evening, produced some bright cricket, and gave nearly everyone an innings.

The residents, who batted first, knocked up 115 runs, and still had two wickets to fall when their allotted time was up. Campbell sent the first two balls to the boundary, and soon after knocked a full pitch into the Admiralty compound. Fanshawe batted in very good style, and he and Washbroke made a very useful, last wicket stand, by which the residents' score was doubled. Taylor and Ward bowled well and took most of the wickets.

For the Bridgewater, Taylor and Smythe batted well, quickly knocking up a formidable score. Cartwright, who looked like making runs, was dismissed for 7 by a fine catch on the boundary by Tuson. The fielding of the residents was keen, and no catches were missed. With 12 minutes to go, the ship's side required 14 runs to win, with three wickets to fall. After a fighting finish, the ship's team passed the residents' score with one wicket and a few minutes in hand. For the residents, Wright took four wickets for 17 runs. Washbroke took for 7 runs, and Graham three for 31 runs. Altogether it was a very enjoyable afternoon, and the loan of the ground by Admiral Chen Shao-kuan was much appreciated.

CHAMPION LONG JUMPER HAITI, HAITI'S OLYMPIC HOPE

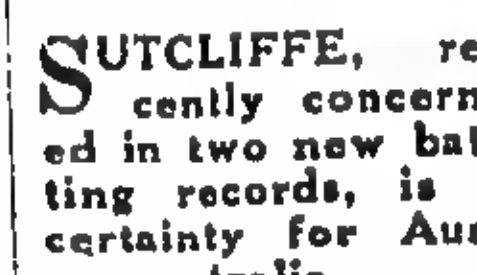

Haiti, Haiti will send only two athletes to the Olympic Games at Los Angeles, but it has high hopes that at least one of them, Sylvio Cator, the world record broad jumper, will bring back the gold medal of victory.

Cator finished second to Ed Hamm of the United States in the 1928 Olympics at Amsterdam. Shortly afterwards in an international meet at the Colombes Stadium, Paris, the Haitian leapt 26 feet, 1/2 inch, to establish a new world record, the first man to clear 26 feet in track and field history.

NEW RIVAL APPEARS.

Hamm is no longer a rival but Cator has heard about the achievements of a Japanese rival, Nambu, who jumped 26 feet, 2 1/2 inches at Tokyo last year. As a result the Haitian has been training for six months, perfecting his form.

Andre Chevalier, president of the Haitian Olympic committee, predicts Cator will better his own world record in the Olympics. In fact it is understood he has already secured a 15-run advantage.

SUTCLIFFE, recently concerned in two new batting records, is a certainty for Australia.

HOBBS, who declares he has played his last Test Match, but he is still good enough for more.

WOOLLEY, who is displaying sparkling form this year at the age of 44.

That effort brought him right into the spotlight. He is a good stylish batsman with a strong defence and a nice variety of strokes.

NOT THE REAL HAMMOND.

Hammond, the famous Gloucestershire batsman who is 28, has recently begun to show a little form, but so far there has been no sign of a return of that brilliant form of four and five years back. I. R. Jardine is another young cricketer aged 32 he will captain England in Australia. Appearing as captain of the Surrey side for the first time he scored 164 against Worcester, but his second century has not yet come along.

Although looking at the youthful talent through the most favourably tinted glass one cannot

This is the second time Verity has taken all ten wickets in one innings, and his latest figures suggest that they constitute something of a record, although Wisden does not give any comparative feats.

WHITE'S FIFTEEN.

That the old school is keeping cricket alive this summer is further evidenced by the remarkable feat of "Farmer" J. C. White, the Somerset spin bowler, who, against Glamorgan, captured 15 wickets for 96 runs, to enable Somerset to win by an innings. This was another instance where advantage was taken of a sticky wicket, the Somerset innings being closed at 263 for 7 wickets, which left them only 141 runs ahead on the first knock.

The outstanding performance at Blackheath where Kent and Surrey met in their annual conflict was the fine innings of F. R. Brown, the Cambridge player, who scored 168. Brown is not, judging from his record at the University, a batsman, but he played the "Hop" county's attack to allow Surrey to win points on first innings. Leslie Ames followed up his century at Tunbridge Wells with another against Surrey, who only secured a 15-run advantage.

George Geary is 39. He made the trip with Chapman's 1928-29 team and he is still a great bowler. Last year he bowled 1,300 overs with great success.

Percy Holmes is 44, and he knows Sutcliffe's running between the wicket better than any other with the exception of Jack Hobbs.

The other veterans who have been very much in the public eye recently have been Freeman of Kent and Parker of Gloucestershire. Freeman is 43, Parker 47.

None of these men are getting younger and everyone is asking: Where is the talent that will replace them in the next few years? At present there is none too much in sight.

LEGALITY OF DETAINING PRISONERS

Questions relative to the detention of prisoners under the Deportation Ordinance were asked of Chief Detective Inspector A. N. Reynolds, by Mr. F. H. Losely before Mr. Grantham at the Central Police Court yesterday, in the extradition case in which the Canton Government are seeking Leung Cheung for an alleged crime in Chinese territory.

The fugitive, who was discharged on other proceedings on June 6 last, was represented by Mr. Losely, the Crown case being conducted by Mr. R. E. Lindsell (Assistant Attorney General).

Under cross-examination, Chief Detective Inspector Reynolds denied that it was the practice of the Hongkong Police to detain a man for deportation without caring how he was detained. Prisoners were held as long as the Police were entitled to hold them, and no longer. Occasionally mistakes were made, but they were not made deliberately. Where a man was arrested on a warrant signed by a Magistrate the Police were entitled to disregard the command contained therein requiring them to bring the person arrested before the Magistrate, provided the man did not commit the offence mentioned in the warrant.

The Local Practice.

Mr. Losely: You won't admit that it has been the regular and consistent practice of the Police to arrest people for the purpose of deportation without any proper warrant?

Witness: No I won't admit that. It only happens occasionally?—Yes.

And when it does happen the practice is to send the usual request for a detention warrant up to the Colonial Secretary's Office?—Yes.

It comes back whether a man is in legal detention or not?—He is released and re-arrested.

When you apply for the detention warrant in such a case do you suppress the fact that the man is already under detention?—It is never necessary to put in whether the man is under detention or otherwise.

Do you suggest that His Excellency the Governor signs this detention warrant blissfully ignorant of the fact that the man may be in illegal detention? His Worship pointed out that the witness was not in a position to answer that question.

Answering a further question witness said that it was wrong to suggest that the Government made no complaints to the Police if it was discovered that a man was illegally under detention.

Warrant Ignored.

Referring to the provisional warrant issued for the arrest of the fugitive on April 1 the witness said that he had ignored it.

Mr. Losely: In the usual way?—I ignored it.

In fact, it is not quite true to say you ignored it, only until it was convenient to you?—Until it was convenient to me and the prisoner.

Mr. Losely pointed out that it was about nine weeks after the warrant was issued that the Police actually arrested the fugitive, and asked if the Police kept the warrant "up their sleeves" for that time.

Witness replied that the fugitive's Counsel was aware of the warrant.

Mr. Losely: Will you tell me why you didn't execute it?—Chiefly as a charge of a similar nature had been preferred against the man and I had no wish to put in to the Magistrate another warrant of the same nature.

I put it to you that your object in holding this up was to get over the inconvenient section that the Magistrate will discharge the fugitive if a requisition did not arrive within reasonable time?—I absolutely deny that.

You will admit it may have that effect?—Yes.

The hearing was adjourned until Saturday next.

THE HEALTH REPORT.

A WEEK'S SURVEY OF INFECTIOUS DISEASE

The Colony's health report for the week ending Saturday, July 9, shows the following cases of infectious disease, and deaths therefrom:

Cholera, 33 cases and 33 deaths (21 from Victoria, 8 from Kowloon and 4 from Shaukiwan).

Small-pox, one case and 2 deaths. Diphtheria, 2 cases.

Typhoid, 11 cases and 2 deaths. Meningitis, 2 cases and 2 deaths. There were also 57 deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis.

Four of the cholera cases were imported.

During the twenty-four hours ended on Monday, only one case of cholera, from the Kowloon district, was reported to the health authorities.

London, July 12.

That the Government is taking the wrong line in speaking of the "difficulty and expense" in complying with the "extremely modest and well-timed request" of Sir Alfred Knox, in the House of Commons on June 27, is lengthily argued by Mr. P. C. Young in a letter to The Times.

Pleading for the necessity of an early start in the reconstruction of China, "which will be the work of decades rather than years," Mr. Young contends that during the transition period, firm and effective Government is required in Manchuria, where the present unsolved question constitutes a menace to world peace. At the same time, separate special treatment for Shanghai and other foreign concessions was essential, giving the assurance of liberal, effective and enlightened Government, not only on account of foreign interests, but because those regions formed the foot of China's industrial and commercial life and the only safeguard against a complete collapse of governmental authority. Sir Austen Chamberlain's pronouncement regarding the early retrocession was seriously discouraging enterprise.

As regards the rest of China it was regrettable that no official utterance appeared in prospect, notwithstanding Sir Miles Lampson's opportunities of forming a considered opinion.

Therefore Mr. Young hopes the matter will not be allowed to rest in the position indicated in Sir John Simon's reply.—Reuter.

Sir Alfred Knox enquired regarding a report on general conditions in China and Sir John Simon replied that considerable difficulty and expense would be entailed in so doing.

Mr. Young, who is General Manager of the Kailan Mining Administration, was formerly Chairman of the British Municipal Council at Tientsin.

League Mission.

Tokyo, July 12.

The Earl of Lytton has recovered from his illness and attended the League of Nations Commission's conversations with Count Uchida this afternoon. They will be continued on Thursday.

What transpired was not revealed, as the Commission is understood to have requested that the talk be kept private. Prior to to-day's meeting with Count Uchida, representatives of the Students' Patriotic League, comprising 12 Universities, called on the members of the Commission to whom they handed a written petition, signed by 10,000 students, asking the Commission to use fair judgment in their solution of the Sino-Japanese dispute.

Mr. Chiang Tao-pin, who returned to Tokyo yesterday, paid a courtesy visit on Count Uchida this afternoon, when he reported on and discussed current problems.—Reuter.

Points Emphasised.

Tokyo, July 12.

Reports from Japanese sources state a few points believed to have been emphasised by Count Uchida at to-day's meeting with Lord Lytton and the Commission.

They are:
The solution of the Manchurian problem must be permanent.

The solution must clear out future obstacles in Manchuria. Japan must recognize the Manchukuo Government, since the Manchukuo is a concrete fact and the Japanese Government is free to acknowledge her as an independent country; therefore it is the Japanese intention of recognition at the earliest date in order to make permanent peace in the Far East.

Japan does not consider such recognition a breach of the Nine Power treaty.

Japan has no intention of annexing the Manchukuo to Japan.

Japan believes that direct negotiations with the National Chinese Government concerning Manchurian questions are senseless, in view that the Manchukuo Government had been established.—Reuter's Special.

NEW WANCHAI FIRE STATION.

Additional details are available regarding the new fire station for the Wanchai brigade.

The recent station was merely a temporary affair and was at one time a cinema that was erected before the making of the reclamation. After the reclaimed area had been mapped out and the street lines determined, it was found that this building stood on the lines of one of the roads. It was allowed to remain in use for the time being, but now that it is necessary to complete the road system it has been decided to demolish the structure.

The materials that are still useful are to be used in the erection of another temporary building, larger in size so as to accommodate five pieces of apparatus instead of the three housed in the old building. This new structure, which is to be 60 feet long by 35 feet wide, will take the appearance of the Central Fire Station on Des Voeux Road, and will have five main doorways. It will be built of timber and bricks with a steel and asbestos roof, and will face Johnston Road.

There will be no accommodation for the firemen on the premises, but they will continue to be housed in the old No. 2 Police Station nearby, while the hose tower, which is now in the compound of the new No. 2 Police Station, will be temporarily erected there.

It is expected that, as soon as an appropriation to cover the cost can be secured, a permanent fire station for this district will be erected further east, probably in the immediate vicinity of the police station at Bay View. The new building will be a relatively large and quite modern structure, and will house both the Police Station and the Fire Brigade. So far no plans have been prepared for this building, and it is not expected that the project will be taken up for the next three or four years.

are by no means as powerless as we think. On all hands it is said that the individual to-day counts for nothing and can do nothing. He is crushed by systems, displaced by machines, and exploited by combines. In economics and politics alike, the game is played behind closed doors and the only rule seems to be that the common man must always lose.

"That is all very true, but it is not the whole truth. Very seldom has there been a generation so rich as our own in forceful, energetic personalities. These men of whom I have been speaking, they are individuals, many of them with little or nothing behind them, and we should think of them, not as half-gods whom we are to worship, but as men like ourselves who prove to us that the individual is still the centre of power.

Put Superman Aside. "I believe that we should resolutely put aside this longing for a superman and go boldly forward in the path of democracy. The times in which we live are not an appeal for a dictator who will jockey us all into happiness and prosperity, but for a few hundred thousand ordinary people who will seek a little more knowledge and develop a little more courage.

"There is one article of faith which a civilisation simply cannot afford to lose—faith in the power of the individual to make the world as it is a little nearer to the world as it ought to be. We need a new morale, a conviction that the power of circumstances is not ultimate, that in such measure as we are prepared to grapple with it, we are its master and not its slaves.

"It would be very comforting to believe that it is the folly of kings and statesmen which has brought us where we are, but it is scarcely true. Each of us has contributed his quota of ignorance, indifference and hesitation to the result and it is yet to be seen whether there is any deliverance possible in the long run without individual acceptance of responsibility and individual courage." (Applause).

MUNSANG COLLEGE PRIZE-DAY.

PERIOD OF FINANCIAL STRESS TIDED OVER

Munsang College, Kowloon City, held its annual prize-day yesterday, when the Headmaster (Mr. R. Huang) presented his report on the work of the School for the past year.

Particular reference was made to a period of financial stress which the institution passed through, but a timely grant-in-aid from the Government, in recognition of the excellent work being carried out and the tireless efforts of Mr. Huang, has enabled it to carry on, and a bright future is predicted.

The Hon. Mr. S. W. T'sao, Chairman of the College Council, presided, the visitors including Mr. G. P. de Mart, Director of Education, Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, and others.

An enjoyable concert given by the pupils was much enjoyed. Mr. Huang then read his report on the work of the School for the past year.

Principal Congratulated.

The Hon. Mr. S. W. T'sao said: It gives me great pleasure to come here to-day and distribute the prizes. On the programme I see that I am expected to make a speech after the distribution of prizes. But after listening to the most interesting report of the Headmaster I feel that I have very little to say except to offer my hearty congratulations to the Headmaster and his staff for completing another year's work with success.

At the beginning of last year the school was in a very critical position on account of lack of funds. Any Head Master with less courage and faith than Mr. Huang would have abandoned his ship and left a few hundred students stranded. But not so with Mr. Huang. He stuck to his wheel and weathered the storm of the financial sea, and with the timely assistance from the Government, saved her from wrecking.

Hitherto the work of the Munsang College has been carried on privately and unassumingly and little is known to the Educational Authorities. Since the application for help, the Government has looked into the working of the school and found it worthy of support. The school is not only receiving financial assistance from the Government but also sound advice from the Education Department on educational matters.

Under these auspicious circumstances I feel sure that the school will attain further successes and greater achievements.

Ladies and gentlemen, I wish the College every success. (Applause).

turning a bright barreled object upon himself.

"Stop it, you fool! Stop it!" It was her own voice but it sounded hoarse and strange. Ben lay grotesquely like a fallen marionette. Simon came running and lifted his employer.

"It's nothing. He only got me in the arm," Heath muttered. "I'll be all right." They helped him to the car. Oddly enough there were no spectators for this little drama. The park at this hour at this particular place was deserted.

"Who is the fool?" Heath demanded in a low, angry voice.

"I know him," Susan murmured. "I saw him for an instant under the light. It's a boy I used to see."

Heath glanced at her shrewdly. He knitted his brows for a moment, debating. Then he ordered Simon sharply, "Better drag the young idiot in here. We must hush this up at all costs."

"Drive to Dr. Blake's in Bank street," he told Simon fiercely. "The young fool's still alive, thank Heaven, although he doesn't deserve to be."

Susan put throbbing hands to her temples. The horror of the situation overwhelmed her. Surely she would wake, and find she had been dreaming.

Dr. Blake's home had a driveway and a service door opening directly upon that. No one molested them or questioned them as they lifted the unconscious figure and carried it inside.

"You wait here," Heath told Susan. "I don't want you mixed up in this." He looked older, sterner.

"Your arm?" she faltered. Oh, she had not meant to bring trouble to him!

"It's all right. Blake will attend to it in a few minutes. Don't worry. It's lucky this happened so near his office. I've known him for years."

Simon came out, waiting orders. Heath told him, "You're to take Miss Carey home and come back for me."

Susan asked timidly, "You'll telephone me later and let me know what happens?"

"Of course." She had never liked him as much as she did at that moment. She leaned toward him and said, softly and hurriedly, "This boy hasn't any claim on me."

Heath's face lighted, but he said rather brusquely, "You didn't need to tell me. I know it." "Will he live?" asked Susan, fearfully.

Heath shrugged. "Blake says he doesn't know." (To be Continued)

"A HOUSE DIVIDED"

RECENT SHOOTING INCIDENT

ACCUSED MAN IN COURT

Appearing on remand before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning, on a charge of shooting at Sergeant Harris with intent to evade apprehension at West Point on July 21st, Lam Lu, aged 22, was transferred to Mr. Wynne-Jones' court for trial, the First Magistrate having all his dates during the next two weeks all booked up.

The defendant is alleged to have committed a burglary at a shop in Lai On Lane, and when being apprehended by Sergeant Harris a struggle ensued, during which the defendant is alleged to have gained possession of the officer's revolver and to have fired two shots at him, both fortunately missing, although burnt marks on the uniform indicated that the officer had a narrow escape.

Detective Sub Inspector O'Connor informed his Worship that the Public Prosecutor (Mr. R. E. Lindell) would be taking the case.

The case was later taken to the small Court before Mr. Wynne-Jones and the defendant was remanded until next Monday afternoon, when the hearing will be commenced.

SMALL TRUCK PROBLEM

USED WITHOUT ANY LICENCES

A raid was made by the Wanchai Police yesterday on the drivers and owners of small four-wheeled trucks which were being used without licences and at the Central Police Court this morning fifteen defendants were charged before Mr. Schofield.

Sergeant W. W. Williamson, who prosecuted, informed his Worship that the trucks were permitted by the authorities during the recent water shortage and now that there was no necessity to utilise them for that purpose the police were having them taken off the road. The trucks were never licensed. They were small contraptions with four wheels and had no steering system, the wheels thus causing much damage to the roadway.

Owners of the trucks, who were charged with failing to licence them, were each fined $10, whilst the drivers were fined $4 each.

Pleading guilty to a charge of keeping an unregistered motor-car, a woman named Ip Fuk, living at No. 120, Tai Nan Street, was fined $50 before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning.

Sub-Inspector Fraser, who prosecuted, said defendant had had the girl for about two years.

Eight errors in the field accounted for Chicago's defeat by Washington.

Watkins and Jimmy Collins hit home runs to enable St. Louis to snatch victory from the Phillies, for whom Whitney and V. Davis homered.

Frederick hit a home run for Brooklyn at Pittsburgh, but the Pirates continued their winning streak.

MEEN KNOCKED OUT IN TWO ROUNDS

London, July 12. Jack Petersen, the new star in the British heavyweight boxing firmament, more than justified the expectations of his supporters to-night when, at the Wimbledon Stadium, he won the British championship, knocking out Reggie Meen, the holder.

The fight lasted under two rounds. Petersen attacked with marked judgment and quickly had Meen in difficulty. The Cardiff boy knocked the holder out in the second round with a terrific punch to the jaw.—Reuter.

Four further cases of cholera (three from Victoria and the other from Aberdeen) were notified yesterday, as well as one case of small-pox.

EUROPEAN BOUND OVER

RESENTED NOISE BY CHILDREN

A squabble between a European and a party of school-children led to the appearance of Mr. Joseph Drewery before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning as defendant in a summons in which he was alleged to have assaulted a number of children by throwing water on them on June 30.

Mr. F. C. E. Rendall, appearing for the complainants, said the children belonged to a school with premises on the ground floor of No. 8, Sai Yeung Choi Street. At 12.30 p.m. on June 30, they were playing in the yard when water was poured on them from the third floor of house No. 10.

The headmaster of the school, on this being brought to his notice, informed the police, and a Chinese detective was sent to make inquiries. As a result of these inquiries, it was alleged that defendant admitted having thrown the water.

On July 3, the children were in the yard going through their drilling exercises. Defendant, it was alleged, came out to the verandah of his flat, and shouted that if they did not stop their noise he would come down and strike them.

Mr. Rendall said the summons was taken out to ensure that the complainants would be given protection. He pointed out that people came to live in the vicinity of the school on their own accord, and should expect a bit of noise. Children, he said, always had and always would make a certain amount of noise.

Defendant denied the allegations, saying that he did not throw any water on the school-children at any time.

After the headmaster and a boy had given evidence, Mr. Rendall informed his Worship that an important witness, the wife of the master who had actually seen the water thrown by the defendant, was not in Court, but was on her way.

The case was accordingly put back, but when it was called again, his Worship said he could not go on with the case as he had several other cases to take. He suggested an adjournment.

Mr. Drewery remarked that an adjournment would be rather inconvenient for him, as he found it difficult to get away from his work to attend Court.

After consideration, Mr. Drewery decided to plead guilty to a technical offence.

His Worship remarked that as the complainants simply wished protection to be given, he would bind defendant over in the sum of $200 to keep the peace for 12 months. In doing so, his Worship advised the headmaster of the school to prevent his boys from blowing bugles at 7 o'clock in the morning.
